Come for a MOTOR CAR GLIDE

For the Vauxhall Light Six has Independent Springing which smoothes out bumps and pot-holes and makes rough roads seem smooth as bowling greens. Yet this is only one reason why the Vauxhall Light Six is the most popular car in its class. A lively road performance, an easy jacking system, Vauxhall Synchro-Mesh and modern streamlined coachwork make it outstanding value-for-money. May we arrange a demonstration glide?

SECRET ELECTRIC BATTERY

DUBLIN INVENTORS' CLAIM

CHEQUES THAT WERE STOPPED

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE JOHNSTON.)

THE adjourned motion for an interlocutory injunction in the action of John D. Doyle and his wife, Mary Doyle, 30 Sycamore road, Mount Merrion, Dublin, against E. A. Margetson, Ely place, Dublin, and W. H. Flanagan, electrical engineer and proprietor of the Skerries Electricity Works, came before the Court.

The plaintiffs sought an injunction to restrain the defendants from disclosing, parting with, or making use of, or permitting to be used in any manner whatsoever, certain secret information relating to patentable improvements in an invention of the plaintiffs in connection with storage batteries. The plaintiffs alleged that the defendants falsely represented that they were bound to disclose the information to them as the authorised representatives of a company formed for the purpose of exploiting the invention.

It was agreed to treat the hearing of the motion for an injunction as the hearing of the action.

Mr. Overend, K.C., and Mr. E. Robinson (instructed by Mr. H. J. W. Downey) appeared for the plaintiffs; Mr. Lupton, K.C., and Mr. McKenna (instructed by Mr. W. McA. McCracken) for Mr. Flanagan; and Mr. FitzGibbon, K.C., and Mr. Cherry (instructed by Mr. Gordon M. Greene) for Mr. Margetson.

At a previous hearing, said Mr. Overend, the Court accepted an undertaking from Mr. Margetson that he would not disclose in any way the information that had come to his knowledge, and the plaintiffs were quite satisfied with this undertaking.

Mr. FitzGibbon said that anything that Mr. Margetson had done as the solicitor for the parties he had done innocently, and he was glad that all suggestions against him had been withdrawn.

Mr. Lupton said that he would like to hear the explanation of Mr. Margetson.

Mr. FitzGibbon said that Mr. Margetson was in court for cross-examination.

MONEY FOR THE SECRET

Mr. Overend said that Mr. Doyle was a retired professor of military engineering and science, and had served in the War, where he was badly gassed. Since then, with the assistance of his wife, he had devoted himself to research work, and he had invented a process for the manufacture of electrical storage batteries. It was proposed to form a company to put the invention on the market, and a Mr. Caton and a Mr. Malone became interested. Mr. Flanagan wrote to them, care of Mr. Margetson, who was the solicitor, and as a result of negotiations Mr. Doyle met Mr. Flanagan in Mr. Margetson's office. On the understanding that Mr. Doyle would disclose the information Mr. Flanagan had deposited two cheques, one for £450 and another for £550, with Mr. Margetson, and Mr. Doyle made a full disclosure of his invention. Flanagan had, however, countermanded the cheques at his banker's, with the result that they were worthless. In these circumstances the plaintiffs came to the court to safeguard their invention, which otherwise would be useless.

In no sense, continued Mr. Overend, was payment of the sums of £550 and £450 dependent upon proof of the battery being in accordance with statements in a pamphlet. The money was payable immediately on execution of an agreement of 30th September, 1935, provided the plaintiffs gave information mentioned in the agreement, and a further sum of £250 was payable when Flanagan was satisfied regarding the battery. On 30th September Mr. Doyle gave Mr. Flanagan a wireless battery, the power of which he demonstrated. Information relating to the battery had had to be disclosed on the face of the patent.

"The secret information we are referring to in this case," said Mr. Overend, "is information still unpatented, which relates to further improvements in the manufacture of this battery."

FORMULÆ LOCKED IN SAFE

The information which was to be disclosed in accordance with the agreement consisted, he proceeded, of full and complete details in regard to the battery. On 30th September, the agreement having been signed, Mr. Flanagan wrote the two cheques. On 2nd October Mr. Doyle attended at Mr. Margetson's office and for two hours explained to Mr. Flanagan the construction of the battery and the secret of it. On the table before them was a document showing the formulæ of two chemicals in which consisted Mr. Doyle's further inventions. At the close of the interview the secret document was handed to Mr. Margetson, who locked it in his safe, where it had remained until now. Having in effect stopped both cheques on the previous day, Mr. Flanagan had come to get the secret information given on the faith of the cheques which he had made bogus. They asked the Court to restrain Mr. Flanagan from making any use of the information otherwise than in accordance with the agreement. Mr. Flanagan, he said, did not suggest that it was in consequence of any test of the battery that he had stopped the cheques.

Continuing, Mr. Overend read an affidavit by Mr. Flanagan, which set out that Mr. Doyle did not communicate to him any secret of alleged further inventions in relation to any of his batteries, nor was any information given to him on 2nd October, save as set out in the agreement of 30th September. On 30th September Mr. Doyle gave him for test a battery alleged to have been made up in accordance with the specification in the patent. Mr. Flanagan had never read the document handed to Mr. Margetson, and he had never threatened or intended to use any of the information referred to.

On 30th September, when he handed over the two cheques, he informed Mr Margetson that the sum of £450 was to be paid to Mr. Doyle only when he proved the battery. On 1st October he informed his bank manager that the cheque for £450 might be presented and asked him to honour it, but told him that before he did so deponent had to satisfy himself about the transaction in connection with which it was issued.

BATTERY "DEAD"

On the same day he tested the battery and found it dead. On 2nd October he informed Mr. Doyle that the battery was dead. The explanation given by Mr. Doyle was that the battery had been charged in a hurry and was not fully charged. As the chief merit claimed for the battery was the rapidity with which it was capable of being charged, he considered the explanation peculiar. At the interview Mr. Doyle suggested that he should pay him £450 on the specification for the manufacture of the battery, which he then handed to him.

Mr. Margetson handed to the Court the document which had been placed in his custody.

Mr. Overend said that the Judge would see in the document the names of two chemicals, which, when used in combination, were the essence of Mr. Doyle's new invention, and were nowhere mentioned in the specification. The battery given by Mr. Doyle to Mr. Flanagan was not given for the purpose of a test.

Mr. FitzGibbon submitted that, as far as Mr. Margetson was concerned, the action against him should be dismissed.

Mr. Overend said that he had made no suggestion whatever against Mr. Margetson, and was quite willing to accept his undertaking that he would not disclose the contents of the secret document.

Mr. Justice Johnston said that he would not make two orders in the case, and would not dismiss Mr. Margetson from it at present, but he would require him to give an undertaking in the terms suggested by Mr. Overend.

Mr. Margetson gave the required undertaking, and the further hearing was adjourned until to-day.

JUSTICE ON JURIES' DIFFICULTIES

REFERENCE IN DUBLIN HOTEL ACTION

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE SULLIVAN.)

Mrs. Mary O'Reilly, Hotel Beresford, Beresford place, Dublin, claimed £350 12s. 5d. against Richard Ryan, Harcourt street, Dublin, as executor of her aunt, the late Miss Mary Cahill, for the board and lodging of Miss Cahill from 25th April, 1931, till 19th June, 1933.

The plaintiff, in an affidavit, stated that Miss Cahill agreed to stay with her as an ordinary paying guest, and she told Miss Cahill that, on account of her intention to stay with her permanently and because of her relationship to her, she would not charge her the full usual hotel charges, and they agreed on the weekly sum of £3 3s.

The defendant, in an affidavit, stated that in December, 1934, the late Miss Cahill called at his office for the purpose of making her will, and told him that within the previous six years she had paid to Mary O'Reilly sums amounting in all to upwards of £500, of which £400 was advanced to enable the plaintiff to start in the hotel-keeping business, and of which £100 was borrowed by the plaintiff. She had paid the plaintiff at the rate of £2 2s. per week for her board and lodging.

In a replying affidavit the plaintiff stated that the £100 referred to was a payment on account. She denied that Miss Cahill had paid her £2 2s. per week.

Mr. Michael J. Ryan, K.C., and Mr. T. Gerard Burke (instructed by Mr. R. A. Burke) appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. J. A. Costello, K.C., and Mr. Murnaghan (instructed by Mr. Vincent P. Dillon) for the defendant.

Mr. Justice Sullivan, at the conclusion of the evidence and the arguments, said that it was only when hearing a case of this sort without a jury that one appreciated the difficulties that confronted juries in actions of the kind. Allowing credit for specified sums, he gave judgment for £265 7s. 8d. in favour of the plaintiff, allowing her payment at the rate of £2 10s a week. He gave her costs on the High Court scale, and allowed the defendant his costs, as executor's costs, out of Miss Cahill's estate.

DISTRICT JUSTICE SUES NEWSPAPERS

(BEFORE THE MASTER OF THE HIGH COURT.)

An application for discovery of documents was made on behalf of the plaintiff in an action in which Sean MacGiollarnath (District Justice Forde), Galway, claims damages for alleged libel from the Connackt Tribune Printing and Publishing Co., Ltd., Galway. The alleged libel was stated to be contained in issues of the Connacht Tribune and the Connacht Sentinel, and had reference to the alleged non-attendance of the plaintiff at Maam and Oughterard District Courts. The plaintiff alleged that the publications meant that he was guilty of dereliction and gross neglect of duty.

Mr. Gearoid O'Sullivan, with whom were Mr. Costello, K.C., and Mr. Geoghegan, K.C. (instructed by Mr. L. E. O'Dea), made the application for the plaintiff.

Mr. T. J. Conolly, with whom was Mr. Lavery, K.C. (instructed by Messrs. MacDermot and Allen), for the defendants, said that he had no objection to the order being granted, and did not want a cross order.

The Master made the order sought.

FIRE IN A CAVAN CINEMA

YOUNG MEN AVERT A PANIC

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

CAVAN, Wednesday.

A fire broke out in the Temperance Hall, Arva, Co. Cavan, an iron and timber structure, last night, while a cinema show was in progress. The audience of about 180 included women and children, but a panic was averted through the coolness of two young men, Charles Smith and Henry Deighan.

Sergeant Maguaran, Gardai and townspeople were quickly on the scene, and all persons in the hall were got out safely.

The building was gutted in half an hour. The loss included two billiard tables and stage fittings.

UNSATISFACTORY ANSWERING

DUBLIN BANKRUPT MAY GO TO PRISON

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE JOHNSTON.)

An order was made for the committal to prison for unsatisfactory answering of Maurice Lee, a bankrupt, who had carried on business as a ladies' draper at 27 Wicklow street, Dublin. A stay was put on the order until Wednesday next, Mr. Justice Johnston stating that if, in the meanwhile, the bankrupt came to the Court and gave further information of a candid character, disclosing where certain goods were, and told the Court all he knew about the matter, he would reconsider the case.

Mr. Justice Johnston said that the bankrupt's evidence had been eminently unsatisfactory and very incomplete, and, he thought, largely untrue. He did not think that the bankrupt had made a full disclosure to the Court of what he knew, or what the Court required. He would not make any order against Mrs. Lee, the bankrupt's wife, because she probably had been a very minor character in connection with the transactions, but she might have been more candid with the Court.

Mr. Martin Maguire, K.C. (instructed by Mr. C. B. W. Boyle), for the assignees, asked the Court to reserve the question of making an order against Mrs. Lee, and urged that she should be asked to give the assignees every assistance about the disposal of goods that, he said, had been taken away from the bankrupt's premises.

Mr. Justice Johnston said that Mrs. Lee had been only a witness in the case, and he would not ask her to give any such undertaking. She could be called for further examination if anything turned up in the course of the bankruptcy, and if she did not give proper evidence on the further examination she could then be committed.

DUBLIN BOY KILLED

In the Dublin District Court yesterday, before Mr. Cussen.

Laurence Flynn, 85 North Strand, was charged with the manslaughter of Joseph Funge, aged ten, 48 Reuben avenue, South Circular road, Dublin, on Tuesday evening on the South Circular road. The accused man was the driver of a bus which struck the boy.

He was remanded on bail until Wednesday next.

Mr. G. Byrne, solicitor, defended.

HYBRID RYE-WHEAT FLOURISHES

A frost-resisting grain, obtained by the cross-breeding of rye and wheat, is being successfully grown in the Shatov region of the Gorki territory of the U.S.S.R. Tested under a temperature of 22 degrees below zero (F.), 96 per cent. of the plants were unaffected by the cold. In 1929, when experiments were in their early stages, only a fraction of an acre was planted with the new hybrid rye-wheat. In 1935 an area of 7,060 acres was sown with the new grain. The average yield of grain crops in the Shatov region last year was 880lb. per acre, the hybrid rye-wheat had a yield of 2,728lb. per acre.

UNEMPLOYMENT FEARED

CINEMA WORKERS AND THE BUDGET

Grave fears of increased unemployment in the cinema trade as a result of the Budget changes in entertainment tax rates were expressed by Mr. Frank Robbins, secretary, Theatre and Cinema Branch, Irish Transport and General Workers' Union, yesterday.

Mr. Robbins said that he believed that all cine-variety houses would become cinemas as a result of the changes. He said that in the case of the Theatre Royal this would mean that workers now earning about £300 per week would be laid off. These workers would include stagehands, barmaids and the members of the band. It was quite possible that there would be reductions in the number of other grades employed. He was inclined to believe that there was little prospect of either of the Dublin cine-variety houses becoming entirely variety theatres.

Mr. Robbins went on to state that, in his opinion, the prices "war" would be intensified by the change-over. He is convinced that, after the date of operation of the new duties, some of the large Dublin houses will have only two prices during the summer—a minimum of 8d. and a maximum of 1s. He holds that there will also be intensified competition for first-run films, and that leading houses, putting on good pictures and offering the public such attractive prices, will exhaust the picture before it reaches second, third and fourth-run houses. This, he believes, will force the smaller houses out of business. He is also of opinion that some large houses with high overhead expenses will be unable to compete with their rivals, and will lose considerable patronage through being forced to maintain higher prices. "I believe that the revenue, in the Dublin area at any rate, from cinema entertainment tax will be reduced by 50 per cent.," he said. He added that he felt that the owners, in pressing for the alterations, had made a grave mistake.

SCOTLAND IN LONDON

BAGPIPES AND TARTANS AT CALEDONIAN BALL

To the skirl of bagpipes over a thousand members of the Scottish aristocracy will dance traditional Highland reels in a London ballroom next month. They will be taking part in one of society's most picturesque and colourful functions—the Royal Caledonian Ball, to be held at Grosvenor House on 5th June. Two thousand guests are expected at the function, which is held annually, in aid of Scottish charities, under the chairmanship of the Duke of Atholl. This is the 68th anniversary of the ball.

Representatives of nearly every notable famil in Scotland attend the "Royal Caledonian." The men wear magnificent Highland dress or brilliant regimental or court uniforms. Those who wear ordinary evening dress have brightly coloured facings attached to their jackets.

Women guests wear the tartan sash of their clan—a broad length of silk fastened on one shoulder and carried across the corsage of their gowns to the waist. In many cases these sashes have been handed down from mother to daughter for generations. The beauty of the sweeping gowns is enhanced by lustrous jewels and the magnificent colouring of the sashes. Patronesses of the ball sit on a dais to watch the dancing of the set reels which open the ball. These are danced by the Atholl Highlanders, members of well-known Highland families, and officers of Scottish regiments.

Girls and boys of the Royal Caledonian Schools, Bushey, Herts, will give a display of dancing and piping, followed by a grand procession of the performers, led by the Duke and Duchess of Atholl, and the pipes and drummers of the Scots Guards.

REAL ESTATE AS AN INVESTMENT

The agitation against the interest of town landlords, which has been going on in Ireland for considerable time, was referred to in a paper on "Real Estate as an Investment" by Mr. Raynald Franks, P.A.S.I., which was read to the members of the junior organisation of the Chartered Surveyors' Institution, Free State Branch, in 110 Grafton street, Dublin, last night. The paper was read in the absence of the author by Mr. F. D. Shortall, P.A.S.I., who presided.

The paper stated that in the Free State the best rents, when sold, had fetched up to twenty years' purchase, and that the agitation was responsible for their not fetching more, but the Government did not seem to be very sympathetic to the agitators, some of whose demands were fantastic.

At the present time there was a very limited field for safe investment in industry, and house rents were equally unpopular, the percentage looked for being high because in certain cases the tenants showed a disposition to avoid payment. The financial crisis of 1931 had forced rents in England to a higher level than in this country, but capitalists were still nervous about investing large amounts in property in the Free State. British Government stocks were generally regarded as nearest to the ideal investment, and a promise to pay from that Government was regarded as worth more than a similar promise from any other government.

Service flats were a popular investment in London of late, and it might be that they would soon see a similar state of affairs in Dublin.

REGISTERING WATER RESOURCES

The immense water resources of the U.S.S.R., comprising over half a million known lakes, rivers, subterranean streams, glaciers, etc., are all being registered and described in a work which has been in preparation since 1931. In addition to this general register, by 1937 it is intended to publish twenty-three hydrological guide books of the U.S.S.R., with hydrological atlases.

THIS FIRST CLASS TRAIL

LED TO CREATION OF A GREAT INDUSTRY

In the Hon. T. A. Crerar, Canada's Minister of Mines, the Dominion has an expert who combines with administrative ability a facility for telling a plain story in an entertaining way. He has, for example, been giving a series of broadcast talks on the work of his own department and on the enormous possibilities of Canada's mineral industry. His precedent might perhaps, with advantage, be followed by Ministers elsewhere.

In the latest of these talks he dealt with the prosaic subject of Canada's industrial minerals—nickel, copper, lead and zinc—pointing out that in 1935 their output had a total value of £1,800,000.

The metals, however, were not refined on the spot, but were transported to foreign smelters. Her foundries and factories were actively supplied with imported metals which were often the product of her own exported ore.

Four years later, however, at Trail, in British Columbia, a plant was set up for refining lead. The development was one of first class importance, for Trail was the first of Canada's great chain of refineries. Others followed in quick succession until to-day the Dominion is one of the greatest metal-exporting countries in the world.

The four metals accounted last year for a production worthy nearly £18,000,000 and weighing 606,000 tons—a total that was not only 15½ times that recorded in 1900, but was 20 per cent. more than for 1930. Nearly all of it was exported.

In addition there are exports of other important metals like gold, silver and platinum, bringing the total output of metals up to something like £23,000,000 annually.

Facts and figures like that are well worth putting on the air.

CANADA'S LARGEST

Canada's largest mine from the point of view of daily output of tonnage is the Frood Nickel Mine, which "hoists" 10,000 tons of ore each 24 hours, employs 2,744 men with a monthly pay of £72,000, and uses annually 2,000 car-loads of timber. It is one of the many important properties from which this valuable material is won. Last year the Dominion exported 143,000,000 pounds weight valued at well over £7,000,000.

A Washington telegram says:—The United States Treasury has reached an agreement with Canadian distillers settling its claim for tariff duties on liquor alleged to have been smuggled into the United States during the prohibition period. Under the agreement the distillers will pay several million dollars, but the exact amount has not been disclosed. The Treasury's original claim was for a hundred million dollars, but the final settlement, it is understood, has drastically reduced this amount.

"It's uphill work," said the Box Camera, "trying to get clear, sharp snaps with inferior films."

"Quite," said the Folding Camera. "It's no use hoping for the best—you must have the best. And that means Selo or Selochrome! How can we be expected to turn out first-rate pictures in the quickly changing light conditions of this country unless we have a film of latitude as well as speed?" Her friend added: "In other words, British films for British light."

"THE EASTWARD POSITION"

A largely attended meeting in connection with the Irish Church Union was held in the Molesworth Hall, Dublin, last night. It was convened in defence of the principles of the Reformation, with special reference to "The Eastward Position."

Mr. P. B. Morrison, Belfast, presided, and the following resolution was passed:—

"That this meeting, in defending the principles of the Reformation, protests against the introduction of ritual such as 'The Eastward Position,' copied from the Church of Rome, into the Services of the Church of Ireland, and resolves to resist these innovations by every legitimate means. Also that the training given to Divinity students in Trinity College, Dublin, being inconsistent with the views of the great majority of the members of the Church of Ireland and with the principles of what the Lord Primate has rightly designated 'The Protestant Evangelical Church of Ireland,' we urge that this condition be immediately remedied."

In proposing the resolution, Dr. F. A. G. Davis, Dublin, said that the present was one of the most critical periods in the history of the Church of Ireland. In the first place, the dangers were from within the Church, and in the second place they originated from those holding high positions in the Church of Ireland. They had previous innovations of the Roman Ritual, but these were few, and, although of importance in themselves, were insignificant compared with the present dangers. In the Church of Rome the Eastward Position signified the real presence, and when this was adopted in the Church of Ireland it must be assumed that it had the same significance. Among recent innovations were prayers for the dead being requested in the Church of Ireland, and also the setting up of a Roman crib. He drew attention to the non-possumus of the Bishops of the Church of Ireland and also to their demand for reunion with the Church of Rome, as described by the Archbishop of Cashel, which was reported in the Irish Times of the 5th July, 1931. This, he said, would involve receiving Holy Communion in a Roman church, a priest occupying the pulpit in accordance with Roman teachings.

Dealing with the position in Trinity College, Dr. Davis declared that in the Divinity School of Trinity College most of the teachers were non-Evangelical. "The Eastward Position" being adopted in the chapel of the College rendered the chapel objectionable to the Evangelicals. He suggested that the authorities of Trinity College were acting unfairly in demanding compulsory attendance.

Mr. F. W. Christie, Secretary, Irish Church Union, Belfast, seconded the resolution, which was supported by Messrs. C. G. Henry and T. J. F. McKeown, Belfast, and was passed unanimously.

SOUTHERN CHURCH MISSION FELLOWSHIP

The Most Rev. the Lord Bishop of Meath, speaking at a meeting of the Southern Church Mission Fellowship in St. Andrew's Hall, Suffolk street, Dublin, last night, said that the primary object of the Fellowship was the Mission at Ballymacarett in Belfast, and the secondary object was to invigorate and strengthen their Church folk in Southern and Western Ireland. He believed in holding together their people, North and South.

The Bishop of Down, Connor and Dromore said they ought to set their faces against the spirit of defeatism. It did not follow that, if the number of their people were small in Tuam or Killaloe, the work was not of tremendous importance. The influence and example of their clergy spread out and did incalculable good among the whole community. The Church, he said, was not able to keep pace with the growth of the City of Belfast, and they were not properly equipped for the work, which was theirs. When their difficulties were overcome they contemplated finishing the Cathedral. The Church of Ireland was one institution. Its boundaries had been made by God, and the waters that surrounded Ireland were the boundaries of their Church.

The Rev. S. P. Kerr (Ballymacarett) and Mr. R. E. Hearne (Ballinrobe) also addressed the meeting.

IRISHMAN'S DIARY

The Derby Sweepstake : University "Rags" : Men's Clothes : Dairy Maids : The "Guineas" Winner

University "Rags"

In the quiet, easy world of the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries the laborious student was allowed to break loose from his prison study once a year and indulge his fancy on the amused population of the city. Students were regarded as more or less abnormal from the effect of much learning, and they were given a fool's pardon for their acts on "rag" day. Within recent years civic authorities, however the citizens at large may view the matter, have not shown much favour to the licentiousness of students on students' day, and the tendency has been for the law to interfere; the result is that the enthusiasm for the "rag" among students has declined. In Dublin during recent years university "rags" have really been very poor shows, because of the vigilance of police and other prohibitions. Some universities managed to stage really funny rags in spite of circumstances that were not easy by giving the students an excuse for their lawlessness in a good cause. Queen's University, Belfast, has had some of the most successful and beneficial "rags" of any university in Great Britain during recent years, and on their "rag" day they collected over £1,000 for the Belfast hospitals. Unfortunately, however, this good deed has not been so great as to justify their means in the eyes of the Corporation, and so many restrictions have been put on this year that no "rag" will be held. On this decision there has been widespread disappointment.

A Novel Substitute

Jack Siggins, Ireland's international Rugby captain, has found a way of raising part of the money that will be lost to the hospitals. He has promised to lead a team of eleven prominent Rugby footballers in a Soccer match against Linfield, the Irish Cup winners, at Windsor Park. The fixture is so attractively original that it is sure to be a big draw. Siggins has on his side four Irish internationals and several interprovincial players, and they are determined to convince Soccer fans that they are as adept at one sport as the other. If the match succeeds—and everyone hopes it will—it will probably become annual. The students, on their part, have not abandoned the hospital fund altogether, but are, as usual, selling their famous magazine, "Pro tanto quid," which was banned two years ago, and, consequently, has become more in demand than ever. But hospital collection or no hospital collection, one hopes the "rag" day will not disappear from the university calendar; the vast majority of people, especially the young ladies, are willing to put up still with the "bad behaviour" of "poor students." Their fun, as a rule, does not run to such excess as to capture some well-known celebrity and hold her at a ransom.

The State Lotteries

With the approach of the draw for the Derby our hopes rise once again. Perhaps this time we will be lucky—and if not, well, there's always the next one. And the hospitals get the benefit of our optimism. But the citizens of Dublin were not always so philosophical. Chart, describing the State lotteries that were held in Dublin long ago, says that "each lottery produced a crop of suicides of disappointed people who had madly staked their all and lost." The lotteries were very big affairs and prizes ranged as high as £20,000. We are told that "the Chancellors of the Exchequer welcomed this device for filling their coffers, knowing it was surer of its welcome than any tax, however scientific in its basis and considerate in its mode of collection. . . . As the day of the drawing approached Dublin became one great gambling den." The lottery offices, which were in Suffolk street, were kept open all night and the people bought fractions, eighths and sixteenths of tickets, and when they lost they had not even the consolation of feeling, as we have, that their money had gone in a good cause.

Lord Astor

Speaking about the Derby reminds me that he will be a super tipster who will name the winner this year. Fate owes a good turn to Lord Astor, whose representatives have been placed so often but have never yet brought their owner the coveted "riband." This year Lord Astor has Pay Up and Rhodes Scholar to carry his colours in the great race. Viscount Astor has long been associated with racing, and it is within the last decade that he brought off a sensational deal, when he sold Cragadour to Count John McCormick for something like £17,000. Possibly the figure was £20,000, but I am writing from memory. It will be remembered that the Irish tenor was at the zenith of his racing career at the time. He approached Lord Astor it seems and offered this huge sum for Cragadour. Such, however, is the glorious uncertainty of horses—that Cragadour never covered his new owner with any glory whatever. Waldorf Viscount Astor is the second Astor to hold that title, which was bestowed upon his father in 1917. That Astor became a naturalised Englishman in 1889. It is hardly necessary to say that the Astors descend from John Jacob, the famous New Yorker. Appropriately their motto is Ad Astra, while a North American Indian and a North American fur trapper figure in the family crest. Both Lord Astor and his wife have always been prominent in English political life. She is M.P. for the Sutton division of Plymouth. He is a member of the Jockey Club.

The Modern Dairy Maid

I watched the butter-making activity of a number of young girls at the Spring Show. I was rather surprised to find that the garb of the modern dairy maid, or butter-maker, has undergone little change in recent times. In the past, the bare arm was considered de rigueur among this type of worker; but to my way of thinking, bare arms are now out of place in the butter-maker. Much more hygienic would be the white linen coat with long sleeves, and the face should be masked in the way a surgeon's is masked during an operation. Bare hands should be replaced in churning and butter and cheese making by rubber gloves. In the past I have seen a chocolate manufacturer stirring his liquid chocolate with his not very attractive hand and arm. Last week I noticed a cheese maker stirring the liquid cheese preparation in the same way, and I did not like it!

Men's Clothes

An English lady visitor to whom I spoke this week had some harsh sartorial criticism of our men folk. Comparisons, if odious, form a sound basis for conversation, and in the company of a friend from across the water they are always interesting, be they in regard to sport, business, the cost of living or any of the thousand and one stock subjects which we exploit to pass the time. This time the conversation turned to dress. The Irishman wears his tweeds as if he were born in them. Such is the opinion of my friend. His lounge suit, if not remarkable, is passable, but compare him with the Londoner in the matter of evening clothes. He falls lamentably short. His dinner jacket or tails is often antiquated and badly cut. Above all, he wears it as if he were ashamed. In any other city did you ever see a man in evening clothes on his way to a dance wearing a raincoat and bowler hat? The lady was severe, but partly justified. Though the younger generation is usually fashionably dressed, her remarks have some foundation with regard to the older folk. It may be that, dressing for dinner having become more rare, due to the hurry of modern life, the ordinary man resents buying a new suit for the comparatively few gala occasions on which he can wear it.

Mr. H. S. Gray

Although Mr. H. S. Gray, owner of yesterday's "Guineas" winner, has been a consistent supporter of Irish racing since 1891, very little is known about him by the present-day Irish public. The reason of that is possibly because this very prominent owner, who races in England, Ireland and France, is one of the most unassuming of gentlemen. Harold William Stannus Gray, to give him his name in full, is really an Ulster man, although he now lives at Gogmagog Hills, in Cambridgeshire. In 1867 he was born at Graymount, Co. Antrim, his father being Major George Gray, a Deputy Lieutenant in that county. Mr. Gray was educated at Eton and Magdalene College, Cambridge, and in 1894 he married Miss Rowena Stannus, a daughter of Mr. T. R. Stannus, J.P., of Magherleave, in Antrim. During the War years both Mr. and Mrs. Gray devoted all their time and energy to the care of the wounded in the French hospitals. Mr. Gray also drove his own ambulance for the Red Cross. In 1922 and 1923 he represented Cambridge in Parliament in the Conservative interest. He is a very large land-owner in England, and breeds all his own racehorses there, which he afterwards sends to the Curragh to be trained. He has even bred the dam and sire of Hocus Pocus. Mr. Gray has travelled all over the world, is a noted yachtsman, and a good shot. He is a member of the Irish Turf Club and a member of St. George's Yacht Club at Dun Laoghaire.

UNDER THE LIFFEY BED

DUBLIN POWER STATION IMPROVEMENTS

INSTALLING A NEW WATER SUPPLY

By a Special Correspondent.

UNDERNEATH the mud of the River Liffey men are finishing a two years' job of work—the installing of a new water supply for the condensers of the Pigeon House Power Station.

Twin pipes, each six feet in diameter, have been sunk into the mud for a distance of about five hundred feet from the shore, and each day men descend long steel shafts to join these pipes together. They work in compressed air, and only men who have been found medically fit for the working under the increased air pressure are allowed to go down the shafts. There is no lack of men for the work, however, since it carries extra pay.

AN INTAKE STATION

At the end of the pipe-line, a few feet inshore from the main track of steamers entering Dublin Port, an intake house has been erected (with a heavy wooden piling outside it to prevent damage from any steamer that may be off its track). Here the water will be sucked into the pipes, through coarse screens, and drawn to the pumphouse on the shore.

This pumphouse has been constructed in a very unusual manner. Instead of digging foundations for it the engineers built something like a shallow arch of concrete the size of the base of the pumphouse. Then the walls were built to a height of several feet, and men went in under the arch, and with high pressure water jets and compressed air pumps cleared away the soil, with only the occasional use of a pick and shovel. Gradually the arch settled down and the walls were raised a little higher. Now after nearly two years the walls (twenty feet from the top of the arch) have almost disappeared, and a roof (really a "ground" floor) has been put on.

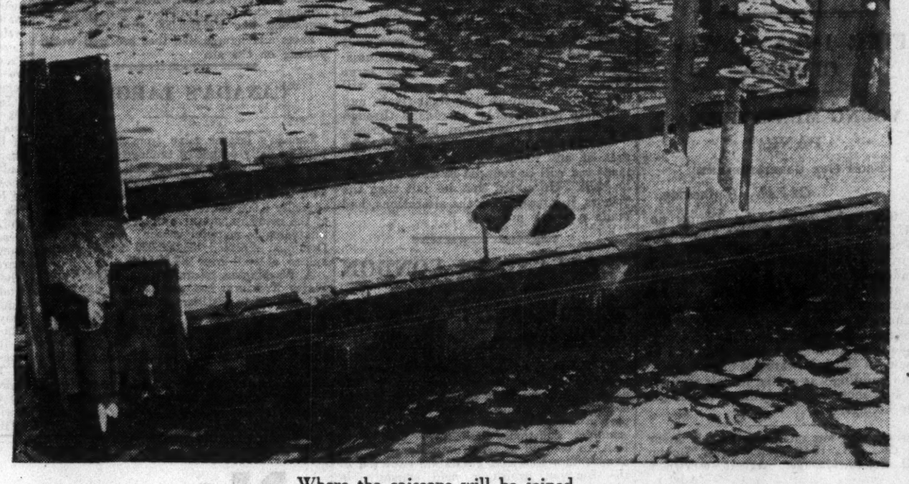
This "roof" is at the level of the surrounding ground, and away down in the walls are gaps to which the landward ends of the pipes from the river will be jointed. More screens will help to clean the water here before it goes into another new building where the pumps themselves will be installed. After going through still more screens—it will be almost clean enough to drink by this time—the water will go to the condensers, and after performing its cooling function will pass out again.

TWELVE BIG PUMPS

Provision is being made for a total of twelve big pumps, and when these are all installed they will have a capacity of 144,000 gallons of water per minute. The first part of the plan, however, provides for the installation of only four pumps. A considerable saving will be effected by the new cooling water system, as previously the expense of renewing and cleaning condenser tubes has been very high. Next door to the pumphouse a big steel-framed building is going up. This will be the new switchroom of the power station, and its interior will closely resemble the switchroom at the Ardnacrusha power house of the Shannon Scheme. On the other side of the building six new boilers are being installed, and I was told that one of these boilers will have a capacity equal to all the boilers installed in the station about eighteen years ago.

Other work which is being undertaken at the Pigeon House at the moment includes alterations to the coal harbour to enable two big coal boats to lay alongside the wharf at the same time. Coal landed at the wharf is taken directly to the bunkers by a travelling conveyor, and a further conveyor is to be installed to transport coal not required for immediate use to a store on the other side of the buildings, when coal from this store is required the reversing of a switch will reverse the direction of the conveyors and bring the coal back to the boiler houses.

Improvements to the old harbour at the Pigeon House, showing the new extension in process of erection.



Where the caissons will be joined.

FEIS CEOIL WEEK in Dublin does something more than decide the winning competitors—it stimulates the love of music in our midst, and fans into flame any smouldering embers there be of musical ambition. Mr. Lionel Tertis, the eminent viola player, who is acting as adjudicator at the Feis Ceoil this week, will come to the microphone to-night to speak on behalf of the instrument, to the playing of which he has devoted forty-two years of study and skill. As an apostle of the viola Mr. Tertis has established his beloved instrument firmly in the favour of critical musical audiences. In stressing the beauty of the viola, and the scope there is for Irish musicians who take it up, Mr. Tertis will give an example of viola playing. (9.10, Radio Athlone.)

Another fillip to music and musicians also makes its appearance in to-night's Dublin broadcasts. At 7.40 a series of radio discussions on "Music in Ireland" will be commenced. In the series some of the best known musicians and music critics in the country will take part. Mr. Herbert Hughes and Professor Aloys Fleischman will hold the first of the discussions.

Passing on to a performance proper, one is attracted by the announcement of a programme of Negro Spirituals, from the Unitarian Church, St. Stephen's Green, Dublin, with A. J. Thornton at the organ. T. C. Earls, as singer, will give "Deep River" and "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot," among his choice of spirituals that are well known. Thus, listeners will hear Thornton and Earls, the popular Dublin entertainers, in serious mood. (8.30.)

From 5 to 5.30 Radio Athlone will relay a running commentary by T. L. M. Fuge on the Davis Cup Match between Ireland and Sweden from Fitzwilliam Club. The Gramophone Concert at 6.15 will be interrupted to give the conclusion of the tennis commentary.

To-night's speaker on the Budget is Mr. William O'Brien, who will give the views of the Labour Party on the subject, commencing at 10.45.

Listeners to B.B.C. Regionals at 10.5 will hear the closing scene of Wagner's gigantic work, "Der Ring des Nibelungen" (from Covent Garden). The whole "Ring" cycle was first produced in London in 1882, where it is still possible to hear it in its entirety at fairly frequent intervals. One thinks of one memorable week, some twenty-five years ago, when the full performance was given by the Quinlan Opera Company to a packed house every night at the Theatre Royal, Dublin. May one be forgiven for saying those were the times.

Listeners who still are getting good foreign transmissions should study to-night's programmes; they will find an exceptionally heavy list of important performances.

THE BOYS' BRIGADE

ANNUAL INSPECTION OF DUBLIN BATTALION

The annual inspection of the Dublin Battalion of the Boys' Brigade takes place on Saturday afternoon in Lord Iveagh's Gardens, Clonmel street.

The programme includes brass and bugle bands, and a massed physical training display by over 100 boys, the largest seen for some years.

The Bishop of Chekiang (the Right Rev. John Curtis, D.D.) is the inspecting officer, and it is probable that no other battalion has ever been inspected by an Old Boy Bishop.

Bishop Curtis is an original member of the 6th Dublin Company, St. Paul's, and rose to the rank of colour sergeant, and afterwards was appointed a lieutenant. He is also a member of the Battalion Executive. In 1906 he went to China as a missionary, and was consecrated Bishop of Chekiang in 1928.

At the conclusion of the programme trophies awarded in connection with the battalion competitions will be presented to the winning companies.

LOUGHLINSTOWN INFIRMARY

RATHDOWN BOARD APPROVES

The proposal of the Hospitals' Commission and the Ministry for Local Government to provide a new infirmary at Loughlinstown, Co. Dublin, was approved of by the Rathdown Board of Assistance yesterday. They considered, however, that 50 should be the minimum number of beds, instead of 38, as proposed.

The Board also submitted to the Ministry that they should provide the full sum necessary to carry out the recommendation of the Commission in the erection and equipment of the new infirmary; to contribute a yearly sum sufficient to maintain it, or, alternatively, a capital sum sufficient to do so. If the Ministry desired to retain the existing buildings, the Board were prepared to hand them over on being relieved of repayment of loans—about £200 annually. At present the Loughlinstown Hospital cost the ratepayers £14,000.

The Chairman (Mr. J. P. Doogue) said that a central hospital for the county and a fever hospital would also be provided by the Hospitals' Commission. The new hospital at Loughlinstown would be for emergency accident cases and a certain number of maternity cases.

Mr. J. J. Clare, who dissented, considered that there should be two central hospitals for the County Dublin.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

PARIS, Wednesday.

IT is rumoured in Bourse circles that to-morrow's return of the Bank of France will show a loss of gold amounting to about £20,000,000. The franc opened to-day at 75.50 and closed at 75.46. A leader in to-morrow's Le Capital by M. Germain Martin, Independent Radical and former Finance Minister, which is likely to arouse controversy, says that the Front Populaire programme includes decreases in economies and increases in expenditure, in both cases amounting to several milliards.

The article asks how, in view of this, M. Blum proposes to balance his Budget.

Owing to the cheapness of sterling and the dollar, says M. Martin, capital is leaving France for abroad. Moreover, English and Americans have left Paris, thereby increasing unemployment and discontent. He expresses the opinion that the only way to bring them back will be by making the franc less dear in terms of sterling and dollars.

THE GOLD PARITY

M. Martin asks: Is it absurd to conceive of a scheme whereby, on the one hand, the gold parity of the franc will be maintained, and, on the other hand, rates for sterling and dollar blocs be fixed at a level, taking into account the changes which have occurred since 1926-28?

M. Martin suggests a French equalisation fund, which should hold the rates steady at agreed levels.

Reuter understands from those in close touch with M. Martin that he favours a re-valuation of sterling and dollars in terms of francs with, possibly, some slight devaluation of the franc. Such a scheme would enable foreigners again to visit France, and is unlikely to cause anxiety to the French public, as devaluation would be easy to conceal from the mass of the people.

SLIGO BURGLARY SEQUEL

SENTENCES ON FOUR YOUNG MEN

There was a sequel at Sligo Criminal Sessions to a raid on the premises of a County Sligo shopkeeper, when four Bundoran men—John Rooney (24) and Michael Rooney (20) (brothers), Peter Ames (29), and James Gilliland (16)—pleaded guilty to breaking and entering the shop of Thomas Tuffy, Culleens, and stealing groceries, whiskey, cigarettes, etc., to the value of £80.

Judge Moonan said that John Rooney, whom he regarded as the ringleader, would be sentenced to eighteen months' hard labour, and Michael Rooney and Peter Ames to twelve months' hard labour. After a good deal of consideration, he had decided to make allowance for Gilliland's youth. On him he imposed a suspensory sentence of six months, conditional on his giving bail to keep the peace for twelve months and to report each month to the Guards.

CATTLE SMUGGLING

SHARP SENTENCES IN THE NORTH

Sentence of six months' imprisonment was passed at Fivemiletown yesterday on Patrick McKenna, Killavney, Clogher, for being concerned in the removal of four head of cattle on 8th inst.

A police witness stated that the defendant was fined £30 last March for a smuggling offence, and was allowed three months to pay. There was a danger that he might abscond.

At Newry Petty Sessions yesterday, Major McCallum, R.M., presiding, Patrick Begley, Edenappa, County Armagh, and Robert Dixon, Mulligan's Court, Newry, were charged with attempted evasion of duty on five cows on December 6. Each man was fined £25 after a long hearing.

Jas. McCoy, Tullyawe, for attempted evasion of duty on two heifers, was fined £20, or, in default, three months' imprisonment.

Middle-Aged Tired Feeling

is probably due to Acid Stomach

Nearly all men, and women too, at about the age of 40 begin to suffer more or less with acidity which gives rise to the varied symptoms of dyspepsia. Food causes flatulence and possibly pain. You lose tone and suffer from physical and mental weariness which shakes your self-confidence and makes you imagine that old age is overtaking you.

Your doctor would tell you to dismiss the thought and banish the trouble by taking 'Milk of Magnesia' to sweeten your sour stomach. He would also assure you that 'Milk of Magnesia' is the antacid most acceptable and soothing to the stomach.

'Milk of Magnesia' restores the normal activity of the gastric juice so that the digestion of food proceeds easily, without disturbance.

The effect of 'Milk of Magnesia' in neutralizing acidity is marvellous. With good digestion regained, most of the "pep" you think you've lost will quickly return. Get 'Milk of Magnesia' and take a little after meals.

Of all chemists, 1/3 and 2/6 (treble quantity). Also 'MILK OF MAGNESIA' brand TABLETS 1/- per box, and in bottles 2/- and 3/6 for family use.

'MILK OF MAGNESIA'

'Milk of Magnesia' is the trade mark of Phillips' preparation of Magnesia.

STANFORD PRIZE GOES NORTH

YESTERDAY'S FEIS CEOIL RESULTS

TENOR GOLD MEDAL FOR BELFAST

WITH twenty competitions down for decision, yesterday was an exceedingly busy day at the Feis Ceoil, and members of the public found it extremely hard to find time to visit the five halls over which the events were spread. In the Unitarian Church, St. Stephen's Green, for instance, Sir Richard Terry had a full day's work with the organ classes, for which there was a rather surprising number of entries this year, the senior competition alone attracting 22 competitors. Mr. Frederick Dawson, who took the junior piano for players under 13 years of age, had the task of finding the best of 62 competitors. In the Scots' Church Hall Mr. Lionel Tertis was again highly pleased with the string playing he heard. The improvement in the matter of intonation since last he was here a few years ago has pleased him more than anything else.

In the Metropolitan Hall Mr. Frederick Ranalow had a very interesting morning's session deciding the competition for the Mrs. P. J. Geoghegan Cup for ladies' voices. Spice was added to the event by reason of the fact that Miss Mairin Fenning, the Dublin contralto, had already won the trophy for the last two years, and required to win it yesterday to make it her own. But it was not to be. She sang the test song (Gounod's "Sappho's Farewell") with wonderful appeal, and must have placed herself well in the running, but she did not do herself justice in selecting as her Irish song "The Colleen's Wedding Song" of Harty. It is the type of fast-moving song in which she is not quite at her best, and the setting did not bring out the best in her voice. As if to show how the song could be got over it was sung by Miss Ella Clarke, the Drogheda contralto, who sang the part of Siebel in "Faust" with such distinction during the past fortnight, in the Dublin Operatic Society's season at the Gaiety Theatre. True, she was only first by virtue of the fact that she scored some three marks out of five for her sight reading, which placed her ahead of the runner-up.

STANFORD GOLD CUP AND MEDAL

The new competition for the Stanford Cup and Memorial medal, presented by Madame Coslett-Heller and some subscribers to perpetuate the memory of Sir Charles Villiers Stanford, drew a fine crowd to the Metropolitan Hall at night, and after a keen competition the cup was won by Miss Mary Dempster O'Neill, Waverley avenue, Ballymena, Co. Antrim, with 180 marks. Her songs were "There's a Bower of Roses" and "A Soft Day." Runners-up, Miss Bertha Ardill, Clandeboye, Co. Down, and Miss Eileen Clancy, Lower Kimmage road, Dublin, with 178 marks.

Mr. Plunket Greene, who adjudicated, said that Madame Coslett-Heller, who was the person responsible for that cup and medal, had given him injunctions not to mention her name, but he was going not only to disobey that, but to insist on Madam Coslett Heller coming on the stage and presenting the Cup and medal. She could have done nothing more fitting and more beautiful by which to perpetuate the memory of Stanford.

Continuing, Mr. Plunket Greene said that Stanford, who had been his greatest friend, was the greatest song writer they had since Purcell. He had done four or five big Irish song cycles, as well as Irish symphonies, Irish rhapsodies, and a long list of works. But, in addition, he was one of the three people who started the great British renaissance of music—Parry, Mackenzie and Stanford. He believed he was right in saying that Stanford taught virtually every one of the big composers of the present day—Charles Wood, Vaughan Williams, Walford Davies, and others. There was hardly one of the latter day composers whom Stanford had not taught, and in that way he had left behind an invaluable legacy.

In presenting that Cup and medal, Madam Coslett Heller had done a very fine thing.

Referring to the Cup winner, he said that her singing of "There's a bower of roses" was a beautiful bit of singing. The words were beyond reproach. The only fault he could find was that her climax might have been bigger. Her singing of "A soft day" also was very beautiful, and here again the only criticism he could offer was that there might have been more lingering with the "drips."

Amidst great applause, Madam Coslett Heller presented the Cup and medal to the winner.

MRS. P. J. GEOGHEGAN CUP

For Ladies' Voices.—Tests, soprano, "Batti, batti" (Mozart's "Don Giovanni"); mezzo-soprano, "Voi che sapete" (Mozart's "Figaro"); contralto, Sappho's Farewell (Gounod), and an Irish song of competitor's own choice. Cup won by Miss Ella Clarke, 28 Shop street, Drogheda; runner-up, Mrs. W. J. Fitzpatrick, 3 Woodlands, Orwell road, Rathgar; highly commended, Hilda Tomsohn, 142 Lower Kimmage road, Harold's Cross; Maura Nolan, 422 Harold's Cross road, Terenure, and Mairin Fenning, 3 Wood Quay, Dublin (holder for last two years).

Mr. Frederick Ranalow, who adjudicated, said that two singers in this competition had "got at him" to such an extent that he had great difficulty in separating them, and in the end he had to decide it on the point that one got no marks for sight reading, and the other got three for sight reading, and, on the strength of that, he had given her first place. These two had very different styles, but they were both first-rate, and had given him intense pleasure. The runner-up had given a most exquisite bit of singing in "O Men from the Fields" (Hughes), but unfortunately in the sight singing she invented a nice little tune of her own. The winner had a beautiful rich voice. There was rather a wobble at the start, but it disappeared as she got on. In her second song, "Colleen's Wedding Song" (Harty) she sang with lovely voice, and fine sense of fun, and first-class delivery.

TENOR SOLO

Tests: (a) In Springtime (Schubert), (b) The Little Red Lark (Stanford) and (c) Piece at sight. There were twenty-seven entries.—1 and Gold Medal, Thomas McCormick, 3 Ardenlea Parade, Belfast, 158; 2, Eric Rodolph May, Iveragh, Greystones, County Wicklow, was second with 152 marks, but he was disqualified, as he had won the same prize last year, and the Silver Medal went to Frank Ryan, West street, Tallow, County Waterford, with 151; 3 and Bronze Medal, W. Miller, Municipal School of Music, Chatham row, Dublin.

Mr. Frederick Ranalow, who adjudicated, said that the first prize-winner showed the most robust voice, and sang the Schubert in good style, getting variety into the words. This singer had given the best rendering of the song. The runner-up had rather a husky voice, but showed fine delivery, though he sang wrong notes here and there. Still, the Schubert was a pleasant rendering. He was one of the two tenors who got four marks for sight reading, and that had brought him up to second position. Most of the tenors were terrible sight-readers—they were good composers in that direction. One of them got full marks (five) for his sight-reading, but, unfortunately, for his songs he was "nowhere." The singer who was third had a nice robust voice and good quality, but his final consonants were lacking. That was a fault he had noticed in this, as well as in other competitions.

PIANO AND VIOLIN DUET

Test: Sonata, Op. 32 in G major (Esposito). There were only two competitors—1, May Morris, and John McKenzie, 8 St. Clare's terrace, Harold's Cross (88 marks).

Mr. Lionel Tertis, who adjudicated with Mr. Harold Craxton, said that they must not forget that it was a great distinction to be a successful competitor at the Feis Ceoil. The splendid tradition of the Feis made it imperative that successful competitors should show real promise, and be truly worthy of the honour of receiving an award. It was from that point of view that they, as adjudicators, tried to fulfil their duties, and he was glad to say that they had no difficulty in this competition. The gold medal went to a pair who had given a most musical performance. They could with advantage develop more intensity of expression. That applied particularly to the pianist.

ELSNER CUP

Piano and 'Cello Duet—Test: Sonata, Op. 5, No. 2, in G minor (Beethoven). Cup won by Kathleen Kelly and J. Havelock Nelson, Achill, Marlborough road, Glenageary, Co. Dublin (88 marks); 2, Dorothy Barry and Chrissie Coleman, 29 Palmerston road, Dublin (80 marks).

Mr. Harold Craxton, who adjudicated with Mr. Lionel Tertis, said that both couples had been very good in difficult work. There was a great contrast between the two pairs. The pair who were second gave a lyrical performance which was hardly in the style of tempi. The winners had a more definite outlook and recognised that good rhythm was necessary. In neither case was the intonation ideal. The 'celloist in the winning pair was inclined to go sharp, but counterbalanced that by her musical grasp and by the manner in which she played up to a strong-minded pianist. The balance of the winners was admirable all the way through.

JUNIOR VIOLONCELLO

Tests: (a) Sonata in D minor (W. De Fesch); (b) Piece at sight. There were five entries. 1, Betty Sullivan, Innisfree, Castlepark road, Sandycove (81 marks); 2, Maureen O'Neill, Kincora, Iona road, Dublin (77 marks).

Mr. Lionel Tertis, the adjudicator, said that the standard in this event had been good, and reflected great credit on the teachers.

SENIOR VIOLONCELLO

Two entries. Adjudicator—Mr. Lionel Tertis; accompanist, Mrs. Gore. Test pieces: Romance and Scherzo (Harty). The gold medal was not awarded, but the silver medal was won by Miss Nesta Vandaleur, of Warrenstown, County Westmeath, with 82 marks.

Mr. Tertis said that apart from a slip in memory, which would not have occurred if she had followed the copy, the winner's performance was quite good. He considered playing from memory a stupid tradition. The second competitor had played the Scherzo far too slowly, which, of course, made it much simpler for her.

BAMBOO PIPE SOLO

There were twenty-five entries. Test: My Love's an Arbutus (arr. by M. Anderson), and Piece of own choice. 1, Helen Plant, 25 Rathdown Park, Terenure (97 marks); 2, Daphane Greeney, 11 Lower Prince Edward terrace, Blackrock, Dublin (96 marks).

Miss Margaret James, who adjudicated, said that the standard on the whole had been extremely good, and she had found it extremely difficult to separate the first two.

Senior Bamboo Pipe Bands (3 entries). Adjudicator—Miss Margaret James.—1, St. Mary's School for the Blind, Merrion (81 marks); runner-up, Alexandra School (76 marks). The Rathdown Park Band, Terenure, also competed.

Miss James said that the standard was very good, and a very good start had been made in Ireland. The start made in England had been very much worse. She wished the pipers would play more for the country dancing.

Junior Bamboo Pipe Bands (5 entries). Adjudicator—Miss Margaret James.—1, Dominican Convent, Sion Hill, Blackrock.

Miss James said that the competition was quite to difficult to judge, and it was very near the standard of the seniors

JUNIOR PIANO C

There were 62 entries. Tests: Lyrical Pieces, Book I., No. 1, in E flat (Grieg); Courante (Handel), and a sight test.—1, Maire C. Ni Cathain, 43 Harcourt street, Dublin; 2, Peggy Parker, Drynan Lodge, Bailey, Co. Dublin; special prize, Phyllis Boland, 24 Leeson Park, Dublin; highly commended, Olive Bassett, 66 Brian avenue, Marino, Dublin; Ethel Graham, Wesley College, Dublin; commended, Nuala Neary, 9 Orwell road, Rathgar; Maureen Farrell, 158 Rathmines road; Ethna Russell, 10 Washington street, South Circular road, Dublin; Myra Baker, 83 Grove Park, Rathmines; Muriel Fogarty, 11 Connaught street; and Ursula Reid, Torwood, Botanic road, Drumcondra.

Mr. Frederick Dawson, adjudicator, expressed delight at the standard of the playing. Each competitor gave very fine performances, and at times he wondered how he would come to his decision. The winner gave an almost faultless performance, and was followed very closely by the second prize-winner. Sight reading was a big improvement on the other classes, but some of the competitors were weak in it. No. 12 (Phyllis Boland) gave a performance which merited something more than highly commended, but yet there was no prize set out by the committee which he could give her. Her playing had pleased him so much, however, that he had decided to give her a special prize of his own. In general the class was wonderful, and he was very pleased with it.

CHILDREN'S VOCAL TRIO

There were thirty-one entries. Test pieces: "The Lamb" (Godfrey), "Little Boy Blue" (Roberton). The adjudicator was Mr. H. Plunket Greene.

Boys' Section—1, John Kane's Trio, C.B.S., Westland Row (171 marks) (John Kane, Patrick Pounch and Thomas Synnott); 2, Gerard Neilan's Trio, C.B.S., Westland Row (170 marks) (Gerard Neilan, Thomas Donohoe and Brendan Roche); very highly commended, Brendan Burke's Trio, C.B.S., Westland Row (166 marks) (Brendan Burke, Dermot Kennedy and John Burke).

Girls' Section—1, Holy Faith Convent, Clarendon street, Trio A (176 marks) (M. Traynor, G. Ferns and J. Hickey); 2, Holy Faith Convent, Clarendon street, Trio D (175 marks) (M. Bradner, P. McGrath and K. Doyle); very highly commended, Saint Mary's School for the Blind, Merrion, Trio "B" (174 marks) (M. Moore, K. Brady and N. Hickey).

Mr. Plunket Greene said that he did not care much for the test-pieces as music. The first was a good deal more difficult than it looked, and required to be sung without too much sentiment. In some cases balance and blend were not very good.

JUNIOR ORGAN

There were ten entries—Test: Prelude and Fugue in D Minor (Bach); "Preston" (Parry), and sight-test—1, Daniel McNulty, 24 Bloomfield avenue, S.C. road; 2, Kathleen Symmonds, Rockbrae, Westminster road, Foxrock.

Sir Richard Terry, in congratulating the competitors for their artistry and musical ability, said that the performance of the girls had given him great pleasure, especially when he had in mind the appalling performance of the girls in the days of the long skirts. On the whole, they had heard a display which was good and sympathetic. He asked competitors to be careful about the sixteen foot manual stop. The tempo was quite good all round. The sight-reading of some of the competitors was not all that could be desired.

SENIOR ORGAN

Test: Fugue in B minor (Bach), Postlude in G minor (Stanford), sight test (22 entries). Adjudicator, Sir Richard Terry—1st prize, gold medal, Edgar Boucher, 37 Thomas court, Dublin; 2nd, silver medal, Eileen A. Symmonds, Rockbrae, Westminster road, Foxrock.

Sir Richard Terry said:—"To-day's work has surprised me. In the old days there was nothing like this entry, and it is wonderful to see so many competitors. It was a great pleasure, indeed, to see so many girls entering for the organ. In many cases, if I may say so, the girls 'made rings around' the men. It should not matter 'two hoots' to competitors whether they are at the top or bottom of classes. It is infinitely better to be at the bottom of a good class than at the top of a bad one. The sight-reading to-day was above the average. What pulled many competntors down was stopping to make sure of a note."

Speaking of the second prize-winner, Sir Richard said she ought to go very far. The first prize-winner was, he said, very good. It was most encouraging to listen to such work, which showed excellent teaching.

"To a hardened old person like me," said Sir Richard, "it is most refreshing to see young people strike out in a new direction. You men will have to look to your laurels. Some of the girl competitors had so much 'kick' and grip that their performance was really most exhilarating."

FITZGERALD TROPHY

Presented by Mr. Desmond Fitzgerald. Three entries. Test: Psalm-Prelude (Herbert Howells), a piece of candidate's own selection, and accompaniment at sight of a vocal solo. Vocalist, Mr. Robert McCullagh. Candidates could choose from (1) Prelude and Fugue in B minor (Bach), (2) Sonata, First Movement (Elgar), and (3) Fantasia and Fugue in G minor (Bach). Adjudicator, Sir Richard Terry.—1, Walter K. Beckett, The Cottage, Foxrock, Co. Dublin.

Sir Richard Terry said that the performance of the three competitors was very interesting and had revealed a very high standard of organ playing. "I don't remember hearing as good as this in Dublin before," said Sir Richard. The first prize winner had captured his imagination by his playing all through, which was suggestive rather than demonstrative. It was one of the finest performances he had ever heard of that particular piece (Herbert Howell's) Psalm-Prelude), and he congratulated the winner upon his work, which showed great delicacy and restraint.

PLAINSONG EVENTS

Joseph Sarto Cup, presented by the Rev. John Burke. Open to male or female choirs, including secondary and higher schools. Test pieces: Te Joseph Celebrent, Alma Redemptoris, Adoremus.—Won by St. Cecilia's Choir, North William street, Dublin (90 marks).

Miniature Cup, presented by the Rev. John Burke for girls' primary schools.—Won by North William Street Girls' National School Girls' Choir "A" (92 marks).

Miniature Cup, for Plain Chant, open to boys' choirs.—Won by O'Connell Schools, North Richmond street, Dublin (92); 2, Artane Industrial School Choir (88).

Sir Richard Terry, adjudicator, said that it was rather encouraging to see such fine performances as they had had that night, but discouraging to recall that seven years ago thirty-six choirs were entered as against seven that night. The cause of the plain chant should be to all good Catholic children an apostolate in itself. It was very sad to find that, in place of apostles, they found flimsy partisans. It seemed to him that plain chant ought to be before them all. "We are," he said, "living in, I think I am not wrong in saying, the most critical period that the Church has ever known since the days of the catacombs. We have had the history of Mexico, the history of Russia, we have the latest history of Spain, and we see what is happening in France. On every hand the pagan menace against the fundamentals of Christian belief and teaching is to be seen. It seems to me that the real fight of the future will be between the Church, single-handed, and the wave of paganism which is sweeping over the world at the present time."

If ever there was anything which should bind men together it was the common song of the Church. The plain chant was something about which they should have no possible disagreement, and they should make that the rallying point in the fight against paganism.

Impressions of the Feis Ceoil—3

By L. P.

THE children had a field day with Mr. Plunket Greene in the Scots' Church Hall in the morning, when thirty-one teams of three sang about "The Lamb" and "Little Boy Blue." There was some very beautiful singing, but practically all the entrants were affected by the difficulty of "The Lamb." Pardonable faulty intonation was in evidence owing to this, but it is to the credit of the youngsters that they generally recovered pitch, and I do not think there was one entry that failed to give a commendable rendering of an unmusicianly test piece.

I hate having again to refer to the question of test pieces, but surely the Committee should take meticulous care in selecting those pieces which attract the attention of the young people by reason of their singable qualities. It is a far better thing to encourage young people by simplicity than setting them a poser which would test a much older class.

It may be argued that the teachers should have been able to get over the difficulties. The teachers in Dublin at least have great experience with school children, who, taken as a class, are teachable and amenable to musical instruction. If thirty-one teams failed, then the teachers have failed also, to overcome this piece of music. Such a fact is inconceivable; our teachers are all right, but the song conquered the limit of the children's ability.

There were twenty-seven tenors for Mr. Ranalow's attention in the Metropolitan Hall in the afternoon, and I did not envy him his task. Somehow or other I have some—I am sure unreasonably founded—aversion to a host of tenors. Perhaps its an association of the word with that quality which "crooners"—or "vocals," I should say—scoop long suffering and suffered melodies into our ears.

That charge cannot be laid against these twenty-seven gentlemen. Though one could not call the standard very high, yet it was such that it provided a level and interesting competition.

Schubert's "In Springtime" has a beautiful curve, but monotonous reiteration of the theme was irritating for singers as well as listeners. The slight variation in the words made it also a feat of memory, and nerves in a few of the competitors produced regrettable lapses which marred otherwise promising performances. I thought the winner possessed a decidedly baritone quality, but, even so, he was quite capable of handling both of the test pieces. The singer placed second was unfortunate in being disqualified, as he filled the same position last year. His rendering of "The Little Red Lark" was far away the best: he possesses a really cultured style which was vividly in contrast to those of the others. Perhaps, next year he will remember that teeth have a nasty habit of interfering with a beautiful quality of tone already treated in nature's resonating chambers.

We are now waiting with some curiosity for the Stanford prize competition, which has been inaugurated by Mme. Cosslett Heller.

Musical people in this country need no telling what position the late Sir Charles Villiers Stanford holds, not alone in Irish musical circles, but in international music. It is a fitting and just thing that he, who bequeathed so much to a musical posterity, should have his name worthily and, I hope, permanently remembered by those who, in years to come, will play or sing the compositions of a great musical genius from Ireland.

It is a great pity the attendance is not bigger for the inaugural contest, but to the general musical public the name of Stanford has not yet acquired the drawing power with which a degree of antiquity has endowed other great composers.

What a peculiar thing it is that we hardly ever consider a musician a celebrity till we have stripped him of all prefixes to his surname, prefixes which, in many cases, have been given him in recognition of his genius. We know him by a mere surname, the familiar mode of address he received from his school-fellows.

The competition is now well under way; we have had thirteen out of thirty-five entries. It is curious to listen to song after song by the same composer, and I am wondering if the reaction in the minds of those in the audience is similar to that in mine.

There are roughly forty-one different songs by Stanford to be sung, yet through each runs the same idiom, veiled by a curious mysticism, which perhaps is best understood by the Celtic mind. These songs can be very depressing, but so are the majority of Russian songs. Here and there we find flashes of humour, but these only serve to throw the shadows into relief.

I am just listening to "Irish Skies," with its plaintive minor longing for Ireland. Even when he describes where he would wish to be, he only allows two major bars for the happy scene, and then falls back into deeper depression. But therein is its greatness, the true picture of the mind's desire to which even dreams and longings are small solaces for the unattainable reality.

The jolly things and the sad things are the necessary concomitants of those two friends, poetry and music. From them comes the offering of Beauty which, when all is said and done, is too often passed by, either in ignorance or petulant obstinacy.

DUBLIN PORT AUTHORITY

THE GUESTS OF BELFAST BOARD

HARBOUR AND WORKS VISITED

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

BELFAST, Wednesday.

THE members of the Dublin Port and Docks Board, and their principal officials, were the guests of the Belfast Harbour Board to-day, and, after luncheon, inspected recent developments in the harbour, and were much interested in the new aerodrome which the Belfast Board is completing at Sydenham.

The luncheon was held in the Banqueting Hall in the Belfast Harbour Office. Sir Ernest Herdman, D.L., Chairman of the Belfast Board, presided, with Mr. C. M. O'Kelly, Chairman of the Port and Docks Board, Dublin, on his right, and the Lord Mayor of Belfast, Sir Crawford McCullagh, Bart., D.L., on his left.

The other members of the Dublin Board present were:—Captain A. S. Gordon, Vice-Chairman; Mr. J. Moran, Mr. P. Leonard, Mr. P. J. Munden, Major J. B. Hollway, Mr. J. M. Irwin, Councillor P. Belton, Councillor D. Coyle, Mr. M. J. McCabe, Senator D. D. Healy, Councillor M. O'Sullivan, Mr. P. McGrath, Mr. J. J. Halpin, Mr. T. O'Connor, Mr. D. J. Twohig, Mr. J. J. Moore, Councillor W. J. O'Hara, Mr. C. D. Hewat, with the following officials:—Mr. E. H. Bailey (Secretary), Mr. J. Mallagh (Engineer), and Captain Webb (Harbour Master).

The toast of "The King" was followed by the only other formal sentiment submitted, "The Prosperity and Development of the Port of Dublin."

Speaking to this, the Chairman said they heartily welcomed the members of the Port and Docks Board, Dublin.

"We have," he added, "pleasant recollections of visits—although somewhat rare—paid to us by individual members and officials of your Board, but this is the first time we have had the opportunity and honour of welcoming you as a body—an occasion which we greatly appreciate. We propose to take you without delay on our steam tender Musgrave on a tour of inspection of the harbour, which, no doubt, as Harbour Commissioners yourselves, will be of more interest to you than after-luncheon speeches.

"I will repeat, however, that we are delighted at the honour which you have done us in visiting us to-day, and I should like to take this opportunity of expressing our good wishes for the prosperity and development of the Port of Dublin, and of drinking its health."

MR. O'KELLY'S REPLY

The spokesman for Dublin, Mr. O'Kelly, responding, said that it was a great pleasure for his colleagues and himself to visit a city where they were always assured of a most cordial welcome. They greatly appreciated the hospitable way they were received on that particular occasion, and they would go back to the South with the happiest of memories. When they came to Belfast they learned something, and they hoped to learn something more after their opportunities of seeing the latest developments on the harbour property.

He was sorry that the Lord Mayor of Dublin (Alderman A. Byrne) could not find it possible to travel northwards, as he had intended. He had hoped to accompany them, but at the last moment discovered that he had an engagement which detained him. They would look forward in the Free State to having the Belfast Harbour Commissioners as their guests in the near future, and he suggested that the most opportune period for this would be Horse Show Week, when they would be able to show them their horses as well as their harbour.

INSPECTION OF HARBOUR

The visitors and the members of the Belfast Harbour Board then proceeded to inspect the harbour on board the harbour tender, "Musgrave." The new Pollock Basin and Herdman Channel was visited, and the visitors were shown the proposed extension of the Pollock Basin. Afterwards they visited the Musgrave Channel and the site of the proposed public aerodrome.

Mr. C. O'Kelly, Chairman of the Dublin Harbour Board, in an interview with an Irish Times reporter, said he and his fellow-commissioners from Dublin were greatly impressed with all they had seen and the kindness and hospitality of the Belfast Harbour Board.

"We have not yet attempted in Dublin the establishment of a large public aerodrome at the harbour similar to that at Belfast, but it is a scheme which we have in the back of our minds."

Sir Ernest Herdman, D.L., Chairman of the Belfast Harbour Board, also informed our of the Dublin Port authority and their officials, but this was the first official visit of the Board, and he hoped that such visits would become more frequent.

NEWS SUMMARY

THURSDAY, MAY 14, 1936.

IRELAND

The discussion of the Budget resolutions occupied the entire sitting of the Dail yesterday and had not concluded when the House rose.—(Page 8.)

Members and officials of the Dublin Port and Docks Board visited Belfast yesterday, where they were entertained by the Harbour Board and taken for a trip in the harbour on a tender.—(Page 5.)

At its meeting in Dublin yesterday the Church of Ireland General Synod passed unanimously a resolution supporting the Board of Education's view that the recent regulations enforcing the teaching of infants through the medium of Irish only are harmful to the education of the child, and tend to stunt, rather than foster, its mental development.—(Page 7.)

GREAT BRITAIN

In the course of the judicial inquiry into the alleged leakage of Budget secrets in London yesterday, a letter was read in which Mr. Alfred Bates offered Mr. J. H. Thomas £20,000 for the rights in his autobiography, and a reply from Mr. Thomas, accepting the offer, was also read.—(Page 8.)

ABROAD

At a private sitting of the League Council yesterday it was decided to prolong for a further twelve months the mandate of Mr. Sean Lester, the Irish League High Commissioner of Danzig.—(Page 7.)

An Athens message tells of clashes between strikers and police during the 24 hours' general strike in Greece yesterday. Soldiers are guarding the post offices.—(Page 8.)

SPORTING

At the Curragh yesterday Superstitious won the Scurry Plate, Little Town the Brownstown Plate, Hocus Pocus the Irish 2,000 Guineas, Engagement the Beginners' Stakes, Artemesia the Friarstown Plate and Portlester the Juvenile Plate.—(Page 10.)

At Newmarket yesterday Flaries won the Newmarket Stakes.—(Page 10.)

FINANCIAL

London Stock Markets were irregular. Most changes in Industrials were adverse. "Twin Eagles" were active and strong, and "Kaffirs" were again in the limelight.—(Page 12.)

Dublin Market was harder. Bank stock rose a couple of points, and Rails favoured holders.—(Page 12.)

The Irish Language

Discussing the Free State Government's Irish policy yesterday, the General Synod of the Church of Ireland added its protest to the number of protests which have been made by public bodies in the Free State since the beginning of this year. It took the form of an unanimous resolution, which will be forwarded to Mr. de Valera and to the Minister for Education, and which stated that the exclusive use of Irish in infant schools was harmful to education, and tended to stunt mental development rather than to foster it. We have little hope that the resolution will be given much weight by the Government. Having embarked on the policy, it is pursuing it with a zeal which would be admirable if it did not seem to be so mistaken; and, having brushed aside the complaints of people who are more closely bound than the Synod to the Gaelic tradition, it is not likely to look upon the latest objectors with any more sympathy. Yet the protest needed to be made. The Church of Ireland has its own definite responsibilities in education, and has a right to raise its voice when it feels that its interests are not being forwarded. Its interests, indeed, are the same in the Free State as those of any other educational authority—they are concerned only with giving the children the best possible equipment for life, and the Church of Ireland schools are identical with the others in everything except religious teaching. The Free State teachers, as Professor Thrift's resolution shows, stand on common ground in this matter, and many of them are beginning to realise the fact. There is a definite feeling that the present Irish policy, especially in its application to the younger children, is wrong. The Church of Ireland is only one of the bodies which do not approve of it, and Professor Thrift hinted yesterday that very soon it might have to make up its mind what action to take on the point.

If, indeed, the whole subject could be treated on its merits and divorced from sentiment, the Government's policy would not stand much examination. A country which speaks virtually only one language is to be converted to the use of another—the aim, indeed, is not merely to make its inhabitants bilingual, but to secure a condition of affairs in which the present language shall be superseded almost entirely. Such an aim would be very difficult to achieve even if the right means were taken, and the procedure in this country has been fantastic. Instead of concentrating on the few districts where the chosen language is spoken as a vernacular, and fostering its development there, the plan has been to convert the whole State to it in a few years by Act of Parliament. The results, indeed, have been impressive in one way. People who never heard a word of the language spoken in their lives began to study it with care when it was found to be an essential for Government employment, and, by making its use compulsory in the schools, the State has been able to claim with pride that the number of its speakers is growing every year. The most that could be said in criticism of the general idea was that it was mistaken and expensive, but as regards the schools there is a further complaint. Surely there can be no two views about a policy which seeks to teach young children their lessons in a language that they do not understand? The strain on the teachers themselves must be heavy enough, but it can be nothing to the confusion and bewilderment of their small charges, who find themselves in the position of being taught two unfamiliar subjects at the same time. Such a policy hinders the true course of education, and we should imagine that it defeats even its own ends; for there is not likely to be much enthusiasm outside school for a language taught under these absurd conditions.

Once the case is brought from the general to the particular—from "another language" to "the Irish language"—a whole crop of irrelevant arguments can be used which will confuse the issue, and it is these arguments which are mainly responsible for keeping the present scheme alive. The language policy, for example, can be made into almost a national issue, and its enthusiasts can urge that anybody who objects to it must be classed as an enemy, not only of the language, but of the country. It is in vain to say, as Canon Hughes said yesterday, "We are not opposed to the teaching of Irish; but, where a language which is not the language of the hearth and home is used as a sole means of instruction for infants in the schools, the results are going to be detrimental to education." The fact that a criticism is made at all will be taken as proof that one is opposed to the teaching of Irish. It will be pointed out, in addition, that no harm has been done to education, because the "Irish" schools always get such high marks in examinations—which is not a surprising result, in view of the fact that a very handsome bonus is given for all questions attempted in Irish. A more serious argument is that English established itself in this country in much the same way as that which now is attempted by the Free State in regard to Irish. There is a world of difference, however, between a language which, in any case, was tending to spread all over the world and a language which, like Irish, is fighting a rearguard action. To force everybody into a knowledge of Irish is not to restore the language to common speech, and to make small children learn all their lessons through it does not by any means imply that they will talk Irish when they go home. If the language is to be brought back it must be by another path.

Work for the Future

The Free State Government's new programme of public works is a courageous venture, but we are confident of its success. As Mr. MacEntee announced in his Budget speech, the total cost during the current year will amount to £2,500,000, of which the local authorities will find, roughly, £825,000. The remaining £1,675,000 will be supplied from a new Unemployment Fund, which will be financed by various means—by a raid on the Road Fund, by the original provision of £500,000 for relief works, by a more economical administration of the Cattle Acts, by the inevitable saving on unemployment assistance and insurance, by ordinary revenue out of taxation, and, to the extent of £250,000, by borrowing. It appears that the actual programme has been drawn up by the Inter-departmental Committee on Public Works, which has been in existence for two years past, under the chairmanship of Mr. Hugo Flinn. Concerning its details, we have no evidence beyond Mr. MacEntee's references in Dáil Eireann on Tuesday. Roads will account for £600,000; schemes of public health will demand £675,000, and the balance of £1,225,000 will be devoted—we quote the Minister's words—to "harbour works, site development works, airports, minor relief works, miscellaneous works and experimental schemes of various kinds." We have nothing but praise for this ambitious attempt to replace the "dole" by useful work, which not only will improve the unemployed man's moral, but will give the taxpayer and ratepayer some return for their money. If any fear exists in our minds, it is that the money may not be laid out to the best possible advantage. The five forms of work specified—public health schemes, road-building and maintenance, site development, harbour works and airports—will be national, rather than local, assets; and it is necessary that their value shall be real and permanent. How useful it would be if the Town and Regional Planning Act were now in operation, so that these works could be carried out in accordance with a progressive plan of national development. Presumably, Mr. Flinn's Committee already has arranged the details, as well as the framework, of the scheme, and will permit no mistakes; yet a fixed, nation-wide plan would be a very great help. For the rest, we congratulate the Government unreservedly. There is almost unlimited need of development in the Free State, and a sum of £2,500,000 will go a long way towards its fulfilment. The condition of public services in many parts of the country is far too backward to be repaired by small-scale methods; many small towns and villages stand in urgent need of radical changes if they are not to sink still further into decay; airports, wisely placed, will be an insurance against the future. If these works are controlled by men of clear sight, so that no large work is undertaken which will not be as useful thirty years hence as a year hence, the country may have cause to look back upon Mr. MacEntee's fifth Budget as a landmark in its history.

Mr. Sean Lester

At a private meeting of the Council of the League of Nations in Geneva yesterday Mr. Sean Lester's mandate as High Commissioner of the Free City of Danzig was extended for a further period of twelve months. The Polish representative paid a high tribute to Mr. Lester's "remarkable work" in the Free City, and M. Paul-Boncour, the French delegate, associated himself warmly with this statement. Every citizen of the Irish Free State ought to be proud of Mr. Lester's record. When he went to Geneva first as permanent representative of the Saorstát at the headquarters of the League he had little or no experience of diplomatic work either at home or abroad. He was not long at Geneva, however, when he began to display high qualities of tact and discretion, as well as a native genius for the settlement of disputes. His reputation among his colleagues became so great that, when the difficult post of High Commissioner in Danzig fell vacant, little opposition was found to his nomination, and, if we remember rightly, the only serious objection to his appointment came from the late Marshal Pilsudski, who was under the impression that the Free State still was an integral part of the United Kingdom. The fact that the Polish delegate to the Council of the League was the first to praise Mr. Lester's work in Danzig constitutes a high compliment to the High Commissioner's achievements during his stay in the Free City. He has had anything but an easy job. He has been forced to assert his authority more than once in his efforts to hold the scales evenly between the Germans and the Poles, and his last report to the League of Nations was a masterly document. Mr. Lester emerged with a greatly enhanced reputation from the contretemps with Dr. Greiser, the President of the Danzig Senate. He has impressed all parties by his fairness in circumstances of unusual delicacy, and his country has reason to be proud of her nominee. Mr. Lester's success in Danzig proves that the smallest nations can fulfil exceedingly useful functions as members of the League. On several occasions representatives of little States have succeeded where those from the Great Powers must have failed; and we are more than glad than an Irishman should have distinguished himself so notably in one of the least enviable posts in Europe.

Banned Bag-pipes

Unless they accompany some great and noble feat of arms, the bagpipes are heard by the mass of the world's population only with reluctance. It is said that the Scottish race generously will lend an ear to the pipes whenever and however played; but probably this is a sentimental exaggeration. The fact remains that, when one gives a tune upon this instrument, there always will be found somebody in the immediate neighbourhood to raise violent protest. Perhaps the protest is made because the audience does not like the noise made by bagpipes, or, perhaps, because a humourist thinks that somebody must carry on the tradition; but, in any case, the protest always is rendered. For long years bagpipers have been told to stop that horrible noise with seldom varying degrees of vehemence; but not until a few days ago, as far as we know, has any bagpipe-hater gone to law about it. A suburb of Birkenhead contained one active lover of the pipes, and three persons who simply could not stand the things. The three persons put it better. They described the music of Mr. Ainslie Eskdale Allan as "excessive, unreasonable and injurious to the public health." The word "excessive" applied specially to the hours of practice; "unreasonable" is an understatement of exquisite selection; and the pipes were "injurious to the public health" because, it seems, they gave the neighbours a pain in the neck. As a result of the action, piping in Birkenhead will be confined to four days a week—at least so far as Mr. Allan is concerned. On these four days he may play for periods of not more than twenty minutes between the hours of half-past six and half-past eight at night. It is a grave curtailment of his spiritual development; but surely we can perceive a way of dreadful revenge. No true artist can give of his all when he does it by permission of the man next door, and within a time limit fixed by the same citizen. The restriction destroys inspiration. Instead, for twenty minutes four days a week, Mr. Allan alternately can fill the bagpipes full of air, stand on them, and pump them up again. It will be impossible to say definitely that he is not practising.

COURT AND PERSONAL

The King has had an easier time this week and has given fewer audiences than usual. Mr. Ramsay Macdonald spent some time with His Majesty on Monday, when Sir W. Llewellyn and Mr. W. Lamb, of the Royal Academy of Arts, who submitted a report of the institution, also were received.

The Duke of Connaught, who spent the winter in Bournemouth, returned to London on Tuesday, and is now in residence at Clarence House, St. James's. Prince Arthur of Connaught, who has been the guest of Sir Robert Williams at Park, Drumock, Aberdeenshire, returned to London yesterday.

The Duke and Duchess of Richmond and Gordon have been making a short stay at Goodwood, and have now arrived in London. The Duchess of Marlborough has arrived in London from Blenheim Castle, and will spend some time there. The Duke of Grafton is staying in County Cork.

Princess Louise Duchess of Argyll visited Queen Mary's Hospital at Stratford yesterday and accepted the gift of a wireless set.

Lord Catto will preside at the twenty-ninth Calcutta annual dinner, which will be held at the Connaught Rooms, London, on Tuesday, May 26th. The guest of honour will be the Earl of Willingdon, who is to receive a Marquessate from the King. Lord Willingdon's honours include the G.C.S.I., the G.C.M.G., G.C.I.E. and G.B.E.

News has just come from Paris that Lord Decies is to be married on Tuesday, June 23rd. The bride-elect is Mrs. Lehr, widow of the late Henry Symes Lehr, of New York, and daughter of Mr. Joseph Drexel, of the well-known Philadelphian bank. LONDON LETTER

ITALY'S HASTY DEPARTURE

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
WEDNESDAY NIGHT.

THE sudden departure of Italy from Geneva yesterday has caused a flutter in most of the European capitals, and in Paris there is a feeling that Signor Mussolini may go to the length of withdrawing from the League altogether. There is a feeling of pessimism regarding the future, and there is a widening belief that the only way out of the situation is that there shall be an international conference which will deal not only with the League of Nations, but with other problems of importance to the world. Whether the sanctions will be maintained until the Committee of Eighteen meets in the near future is much discussed, but it is thought that this will be the course adopted. In London the somewhat undignified and hasty departure of Baron Aloisi has made no very great impression. "Italy will return to Geneva when she thinks it desirable," was the view expressed to me to-day by an expert on foreign affairs, "though she may endeavour to make certain terms before doing so." In the meanwhile, the attitude of the British Government towards the annexation of Abyssinia by Italy is that the announcement must be "treated with reserve."

The League's Future

Events may move quickly during the next few days, as the statesmen now assembled at Geneva feel that the moment is rapidly approaching when there must be a thorough re-organisation of the League of Nations. M. Paul-Boncour, the French Foreign Minister, is said to favour an institution of a much more limited character, with continental leagues working in close co-operation with one another. Should Italy come to the conclusion to leave the League it will mean that Germany, the United States and Japan will be joined in their aloofness. Such a development cannot but help to bring about the end of the present rule of the League at Geneva, while, with the formation of a new League, it might be possible to induce the four Powers to associate themselves with the other nations in the promotion of peace.

Reactions in Kenya

The conquest of Abyssinia by the Italians has given rise to some disquietude in Kenya, and Lord Francis Scott has embarked on an air voyage to London to interview the Colonial Secretary on the situation. Lord Francis Scott is regarded as the leader of the Kenya settlers, and it is on their behalf that he is coming to London. Signor Mussolini, it is contended, means to train a big Ethiopian army, and the prospect of such a force so disturbs the Kenya people that they are anxious to obtain a subsidy from the Government, with a view to training a Kenya army of defence. Apart from the fact that it is not altogether certain that Signor Mussolini intends to raise a large Ethiopian army, it is most unlikely that the Government will be willing to provide a subsidy for a Kenya army. At the same time, the visit of Lord Francis Scott must be taken as an illustration of the troubled feeling in the colony.

A "Paper War"

In the Lobby of the House of Commons this afternoon the progress of a "paper war" over sanctions was watched with interest and amusement, as it is not likely to end in anything definite. Mr. Vyvyan, who is canvassing signatures of Government supporters for a resolution he hopes to move in favour of maintaining collective sanctions against Italy, secured about 30 recruits, and has placed his motion on the Order Paper. Major Despencer Robertson and Colonel Sandeman Allen have taken up an opposition standpoint, and are to support a resolution urging the Government not to take any steps likely to involve the country in a war. This is also supported by a number of members. Sir Alfred Knox also has a resolution declaring it would be contrary to the interests of peace and of world trade to maintain sanctions as a policy of revenge. This has about thirty supporters, but the numbers are increasing.

FUTURE OF THE LEAGUE

ADJOURNMENT OF COUNCIL

UNMOVED BY ACTION OF ITALIANS

MR. SEAN LESTER'S MANDATE TO BE PROLONGED

BEFORE concluding its present session yesterday the League Council fixed June 16 as the date of the resumed discussion on Abyssinia, one day later than previously decided.

The departure of the Italian delegation yesterday has had no effect on the decisions of the Council. Italy has so often threatened to withdraw from the League that it is considered she is not likely to throw away this card.

It was learned last night that a request had been received from Rome to withhold publication of the Italian Note to the League about the alleged use of dum-dum bullets by Abyssinia. Consequently the British reply, which had been prepared, will also be held up.

Three other documents on war atrocities were published yesterday, two purporting to bear out Italian charges, and the third submitted by Abyssinia, alleging that witnesses had been paid for their testimony in favour of Italy.

The public meeting of the Council quickly disposed of a number of reports of subsidiary organisations of the League, notably that of the Central Opium Board.

During the private sitting of the Council it was decided to prolong, for a further twelve months, the mandate of Mr. Sean Lester, the Irish League High Commissioner of Danzig. Mr. Lester's appointment was to have expired this year.

The Council approved the report favouring the election of China to the League Council.

WHAT LEADING STATESMEN ARE THINKING

PRESS ASSOCIATION WAR SPECIAL.

GENEVA, Wednesday.

The ninety-second session of the League Council was adjourned to-night until June 16th. This date was fixed at a private sitting of the Council this afternoon. Earlier the Council had resolved to resume the discussion of the Abyssinian dispute on June 15th. Consequently another day is added to the delay which must elapse before the League discusses proposals to cancel the sanctions against Italy. In its resolution yesterday the Council saw "no cause for modifying the measures previously adopted." It has been a brief, but very exciting, session, packed with dramatic incidents. Now it is over, and it is possible to take a more detached view. It is clear that in the conflict between Italy and the League the latter has not come come off second best. The departure of the Italian delegation is taken with remarkable coolness. It has not had the slightest influence on the decisions or deliberations of the Council.

The truth is that Italy has so long been threatening to retire that it is felt that she will not likely give up this card. Also, some quarters do not hesitate to say that it would not make much difference if she did.

A number of delegations are leaving Geneva to-night, but most of the principals are staying on until to-morrow. Mr. Eden is among these. He has several appointments for to-morrow.

The representatives of the seven neutrals also have invited members of the Council to a lunch, at which various questions connected with the future of the League will be discussed.

WILL ITALY LEAVE THE LEAGUE?

QUESTION HANGING IN BALANCE

ROME, Wednesday.

Italy's continued membership of the League of Nations is hanging in the balance. In authoritative quarters this evening it was stated that the attitude of the League Council had compelled Italy to interrupt her collaboration with Geneva. This attitude, for the present at any rate, was in contradiction with the Italian point of view on the Abyssinian question. It was added, however, that deductions about the action of the Italian delegation at Geneva were, for the moment, "premature."

Baron Aloisi and the Italian delegation arrived back in Rome this afternoon. Baron Aloisi will see Signor Mussolini, and will explain the situation which has arisen at Geneva. Italian public opinion demands the withdrawal of sanctions and the recognition of the annexation of Abyssinia.

Grave words used by Signor Gayda in the Giornale d'Italia this evening suggest that Italy is seriously considering leaving the League.

GERMANY

PARIS, Wednesday.

The French newspapers of the Right, such as the Temps and the Journal des Débats, continue to be most preoccupied with the subject of Italy's intentions with regard to the League. Their concern is not so much one of anxiety as to the fate of the League, but, as ever, because of the German menace. British League policy continues to be distrusted by these newspapers, who would like to have seen sanctions raised, and fears are evinced that continued League opposition will change Italo-German "flirtation" into a definite "marriage," either open or clandestine.

FUTURE OF LEAGUE

TWO SCHOOLS OF THOUGHT

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

GENEVA, Wednesday.

The question of the future of the League of Nations has been discussed very frankly among themselves by the influential statesmen who have been attending the meeting of the League Council just ended. There have been two main currents of thought:—

1—Those in favour of a complete recasting of the present international organisation. They wish to see it become an instrument of conciliation, consultation and arbitration, and to eliminate Article 16 and coercive measures of any kind.

2—Those in favour of preserving the present League, but strengthening its means of action, taking into consideration past experience—Corfu, Manchukuo, Abyssinia. They would, however, limit the field of action to, for instance, the Continent of Europe.

The advocates of this second idea are by far the more numerous and influential.

One idea which has also been put forward is the formation of Continental Leagues instead of the present world-wide organisation, or, at least, of a European and an American League.

WATER WAGS CAPSIZE

EXCITING SCENES IN SQUALL

A sudden squall capsized two of the Water Wags which were taking part in the race at Dun Laoghaire last evening. Their crews—three men and a woman—were thrown into the water. One of the boats sank, but the other was baled out and rowed into the harbour.

The squall overtook the boats as the last leg of the race was being completed, and they were approaching the guard ship buoy for the second time. All the Water Wags took in water, but the Blue Bird capsized, throwing Dr. and Mrs. Meldon into the water, from which they were taken almost immediately by Dr. N. M. Falkiner in the Shindilla. Almost the same moment the Phyllis went over, and Mr. W. R. M'Ferran and Mr. V. E. Kirwan, her crew, had to swim to the buoy and cling there until they were picked up. They righted the boat then and rowed her home.

Only five of the fifteen boats which started crossed the finishing line of the race, all the others having been thrown out of the running by the force of the squall.

The inroads on Chinese Customs revenue resulting from smuggling, alleged to be countenanced by Japan, are causing serious concern to the British Government, says Reuter's Diplomatic Correspondent. To avert the consequent menace to the Chinese Foreign Loan Service which is secured on this revenue, consultations are now taking place between Britain and the other interested Governments, notably America and Germany.

SPAIN FORMS NEW GOVERNMENT

MODERATE POLICY FORESHADOWED

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

MADRID, Wednesday.

After three days of political uncertainty Spain to-day had a new Government, which, from its composition, appears likely to follow a moderate policy.

The new Premier is Señor Cesares Quiroga. Two other statesmen, Señor Martinez Barrios and Señor Indalecio Prieto, had previously declined the mission to form a Government.

The Premiership was vacated on Sunday by the election of Señor Manuel Azana, the Radical Premier, as President of the Republic. Socialist and Communist nominees are absent from the new Cabinet, which is of moderate Republican tendency, having virtually the same complexion as its predecessor. The chief difference is the presence of a representative of Catalonia as Minister of Labour. Catalonia has not previously been represented in the Cabinet.

AN INTERRUPTION IN THE COMMONS

When Mr. Haydn Jones was speaking on the Tithes Bill last night in the House of Commons a man rose in the Strangers' Gallery and shouted: "Why all this tripe, when you are working to destroy the whole world"? Attendants seized him and led him from the Chamber.

PAST AND PRESENT

PROMISES AND FULFILMENT

OPPOSITION DISTURB SLEEPING DOGS

MR. DILLON'S ATTACK ON THE BUDGET

BY OUR SPECIAL REPRESENTATIVE.

THE Government are on a drunken spree, and Deputy Dillon realises the impossibility of impressing upon them their dissoluteness as they emerge from Mooney's bar. Minds hazy with drink are incapable of assimilating the truth. Fianna Fáil is like a sweepstake winner squandering his prize with no thought for the future.

In such picturesque metaphors did the member from Donegal picture the prosperity outlined in the Free State Budget, 1936; and, while he seemed confident that the roysterers would pay no heed to his words, nevertheless, Mr. Dillon yesterday castigated the Government good and, however vulgarly, proper.

He began with the profitable argument about 66 to 1. Some years ago the President calculated our taxable capacity in comparison with that of Great Britain as 66 to 1. On this basis our expenditure is three times as large as that of Great Britain, although Great Britain now is rebuilding her Army, Navy and Air Force. Deputy Dillon said that he was ready to deny the accuracy of his arithmetic . . . if Mr. de Valera first would withdraw his statement about 66 to 1. Incidentally, if the President were to take such a step the Opposition effusively would welcome his return to economic sanity, while laying adequate stress upon his former misconception of the situation. Now you are learning the responsibilities of government . . ., etc. Under these circumstances, Mr. de Valera must agree to the fact that on a comparative basis the Free State is being taxed at a rate of about £2,700,000,000 per annum. It was awkward; but Deputy Dillon had more to come.

GROWING CIVIL LIST

The Fianna Fáil pre-election promises. What the Opposition said in '29 is no joke. While Fianna Fáil was in the outer darkness they condemned passionately the huge and parasitic Civil Service. Now, as Fianna Fáil basks in its place in the sun, the Civil Service is considerably larger than one can believe. And the matter of unemployment. Fianna Fáil in opposition promised the wondering nation they had a cure for unemployment the like of which the world had never known. Thousands of Irishmen and women would hurry back posthaste from America at the direction of a Government at its wits end to find manpower to fill the vacuum created by the new industrial policy. How curious that Mr. MacEntee in his Budget speech should say that "unemployment will be with us year after year." Deputy Dillon was not content. He delved again into the better forgotten past.

Dr. Ryan, in those days of happy optimism, had said that the farmers alone were compelled to carry upon their backs an extravagant Government; and Dr. Ryan had outlined the benefits to the farmers of a Fianna Fail Administration. "At that time," said Deputy Dillon, "beef fetched 39s. 6d. the hundredweight. Now, when the farmer must carry a Government that costs £10,000,000 more to run, he must do it with beef at 25 bob."

Then he became curiously emotional. Reviewing these unfulfilled election promises, he said that "if the weapon of falsehood continues to be used in this country a dictatorship, either of the Left or of the Right, must come. It will be overthrown only at the cost of endless bloodshed." He was demanding that political parties should tell the electorate not what they would do if returned to power, but what they were capable of doing in the same circumstance. The House was struck dumb by the proposal. Mr. Dillon, driven on by a deep belief in the urgency of what he was about to say, lost his oratorical mannerisms.

"We have a certain pride in the fact that we are a Catholic country." In a few sentences he pointed the fall from grace of Spain and Italy—former strongholds of the same faith. "Spain and Italy have failed. One has descended to anarchy—the other to highway robbery." Deputy Dillon anticipated with horror the descent of the Free State into "futile bankruptcy." Were these to be the alternatives—anarchy, piracy or bankruptcy? The House moved uneasily, as if uncertain of the answer.

The debate was treading upon disturbingly unfamiliar ground; and fortunately, perhaps, Deputy Corry came to the rescue with the provocative suggestion that "the farmers were recovering, due to the assistance of the Government." He also said that taxation might be high, but at least the poor were profiting from the heavy imposition; and Deputy Morrissey had a grand time unhorsing Deputy Corry.

THE LAST BUDGET

Deputy Morrissey asked Deputy Corry if at the last Budget taxes had not been imposed upon sugar, flour, tea, coal and the cinema—all necessaries of the poor. Deputy Corry did not even interrupt. For the remainder of the session it was mainly the back benchers who carried on the debate; though Deputy MacDermot, riding his economic war horse, did say that the Budget never would have been balanced if the Government had not pursued its business in the framework of the Commonwealth of Nations. Towards the end of the evening Mr. Lemass gave an extremely convincing proof of the country's prosperity. "I give you this fact . . ." he would say, and then present the House with statistics to point the general well-being. I remembered Deputy MacDermot's observation, and thought wistfully of the copy to be obtained from the first Republican Budget.

MRS. MOLLISON AT CAIRO

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

CAIRO, Wednesday.

After a magnificent day's flight of 1,850 miles, from Juba, in the south of the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, Mrs. Amy Mollison arrived here at 7.06, British summer time, this evening. She had flown without stopping, direct as an arrow, from Khartoum, 1,050 miles away, which she left at 10.25 this morning, passing over Wadi Halfa at 2.30 B.S.T. this afternoon.

Mrs. Mollison left Juba at 4 o'clock this morning, and flew direct to Khartoum, which she reached at 9.20, having covered the 800 miles in 5 hours 20 mins. She looked quite fresh, but her face showed the effect of the hot sun of the Sudan.

Just an hour before her arrival her instruments to enable her to fly blind failed, and neither the R.A.F. nor the civil aviation engineers are able to repair them.

Amy, in an interview with Reuter, declared: "I must hope for the best and carry on."

She then announced that she hoped to fly on to Athens en route for Croydon at dawn to-morrow.

TAXING LIFE'S NECESSARIES

MR. COSGRAVE ON THE BUDGET

ALL CLASSES PAYING MORE

"THE increased taxation which the Budget this year imposes exceeds that of 1931-32 by over six and three-quarter millions," said Mr. W. T. Cosgrave, T.D., in a broadcast on the Budget last night from the Dublin Radio Station. In 1932 the present Minister for Finance, said Mr. Cosgrave, on the basis of taxation in force in 1931-32, estimated the receipts from taxation at £23,310,000. This year the Minister estimated to receive £30,091,500 from taxation—an increase of £6,781,500.

In addition to this increase in taxation there were hidden charges or impositions which the people had to pay in various ways, even if they were not reflected in the revenue which goes into the Exchequer. They were made up of the increased cost of sugar entailed by the beet industry, the increased cost of flour in excess of the world price, the butter levy, the pig levy, increases in unemployment insurance, in national health insurance contributions, and in rates in borough and urban areas for unemployment assistance. All of these, when added to the increased sum imposed in taxation, made an addition to the amount to be borne by the public of at least ten million pounds.

EVERY CLASS PAYING

"The Finance Minister, as I have said," continued Mr. Cosgrave, "has no sources from which to get money except the taxpayer. And in the Irish Free State there is no wealthy class from which money can be extracted indefinitely. That being so, the Finance Minister, to raise £30,000,000, has found himself obliged to tax the necessaries of life. More and more articles are subject, directly or indirectly, to taxes, and no class or individual in the community has escaped a share of the burden.

Giving credit for everything that can possibly be called a social service, the additional figure for social services is in the neighbourhood of three and a half millions. The Minister himself puts it £3,600,000. He goes on to claim a further sum of nearly £700,000 spent by the Land Commission in excess of that spent in 1931-32. That claim cannot be substantiated nor allowed, suffice to say that it includes a sum of £560,000 voted in relief of the situation created for certain Land Commission annuitants because of the annuity dispute.

THE WITHHELD MONEYS

A sum of £5,000,000 was to be withheld from the British and to be used to extend social services, and to help the farmers in a variety of ways. Of this £5,000,000 £2,000,000 formerly paid to the British for local loans, pensions, etc., is not now being so paid from the Irish Exchequer. Thus, by contrast with his predecessor in office, the Finance Minister has £2,000,000 extra in his Exchequer before he starts to increase taxation at all—£2,000,000 which might, and could, have been devoted to social services. I have said that the total amount devoted to increased social services is only three and a half millions, so that the amount to be found for increased social services is only one and a half million. But the actual increase in direct taxation is £6,750,000. What value does the ordinary taxpayer get for a sum of more than £5,000,000 available to the Minister?

In the year 1936-37 the Minister has to find for the Guards £255,693; for the Army and Army pensions £608,418 over and above the 1931-32 figures. The Minister for 1936-37 has to find nearly three-quarters of a million pounds extra for civil servants, and the lower ranks are no better off than before. Agricultural produce is sold at a lower price than before the Great War, but our Department of Agriculture is costing us more than ever.

THE TAXPAYER'S PURSE

To the amount spent upon the Minister's Department there should be added the amount of the direct and indirect subsidies on wheat, on beet, on bacon, on butter, making in all a sum of over £3,000,000. This huge figure is being taken from the pocket of the taxpayer, including, of course, the farmer himself and the worker in the towns. The net result of Government policy for the farmer is that last year he got £83 for produce for which in 1913 he got £100.

The Minister states that the deposits representing savings, reflected in Savings Certificates, the Post Office and Trustee Savings Bank, show an increase in the year 1935-36 as compared with 1931-32 of almost £5,500,000. An examination of the deposit and current accounts of the eight banks in the country show a reduction of over £13,500,000 in the same period, and our sterling balances abroad show a reduction of sixteen millions. It is proposed to borrow a further sum of £1,340,000 to balance the Budget. Should it be necessary to do this the increase in dead-weight debt will approach seven millions.

THE STRANGEST WAR

Four years after the Government's accession to power our burdens are ten millions higher and our unemployed are more numerous than ever.

The sum and substance of the Budget is that the State, which was said to be heading for disaster with a taxation level of twenty-five millions in 1921-32 and a dead-weight debt of twenty-two millions, is now advertised as prosperous with a taxation of thirty millions and a dead-weight of twenty-eight millions. Besides these burdens citiezns are compelled to pay more for every necessary of life, and in this, the strangest war in all history, another Government is collecting five millions annually from our citizens with the help and assistance of our own Government.

PANIC AT NIGHT CLUB FIRE

FOUR PERSONS KILLED

"TIMES" TELEGRAM.

BACK TO NORMAL IN HARAR

RETURN TO RUINED HOMES

ABYSSINIANS AT GORE

ITALIAN "DUM-DUM BULLETS CHARGE"

PRESS ASSOCIATION WAR SPECIAL.

FROM MAJOR J. S. BARNES, PRESS ASSOCIATION SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.

HARAR, Wednesday.

PEACEFUL conditions are now rapidly being re-established in Harar, following the terrible scenes of looting and pillage which preceded the Italian occupation. All firing has ceased, and the surrounding hills have been cleared of marauders, many of whom surrendered. The Italian Governor is sending out emissaries everywhere to inform the Abyssinian soldiers that if they surrender their arms the Government will send them home with free food and all expenses paid. The peaceful inhabitants are gradually returning to their ruined homes.

The Italian march from Jijiga to Harar took two days. Villagers (mostly Somalis from that side of Harar) flocked to watch the procession of six hundred lorries. They clapped and saluted, waved and cheered, while the women showed their delight by dancing.

TROOPS' ELATION

The Italian troops were elated to be breathing fresh and healthy air again. They looked with admiration at the countryside reminiscent of Italy, and stuck sprigs of jasmine and other fragrant flowers in their hats, singing continuously the while.

Their excitement culminated when the walled city of Harar came into view, and they saw the gleaming white minarets of the palaces of the Duke of Harar and the Governor. The Italian flag was ceremoniously hoisted in the presence of General Nasi, Count Vinci, who was Italian Minister in Addis Ababa at the outbreak of war; Signor Giardini, the ex-Consul in Harar, and representatives of all sections of all three columns. Aeroplanes circled overhead meanwhile.

Another ceremony took place when Signor Giardini re-entered the Italian Consulate, which had been completely sacked, nothing being left intact except a piano and one champagne glass. The Royal March was played on the piano, followed by a solemn hand-shaking ceremony. Then a faithful white cat jumped up on top of the piano to welcome back its master.

THE ITALIAN FLAG

"You have conquered all Abyssinia," declared Marshal Badoglio in the pride of victory to his assembled troops in Addis Ababa yesterday, where the Italian flag was ceremoniously run up over the Imperial Palace.

The message reached London a few hours before a Khartoum despatch, indicating that an Abyssinian Government is functioning at Gore, in Western Abyssinia, some 100 miles from the Sudanese frontier. When the Negus took train from Addis Ababa a number of his Ministers took the road to Gore with the State archives.

ITALIAN PROPAGANDA

There has been a new development, it was learnt yesterday, in the controversy over allegations made by Italy that Britain has been involved in sending dum-dum bullets to Abyssinia. Private people and business men in Great Britain have, it appears, recently been receiving pamphlets in which the allegation that Britain has supplied dum-dum bullets to the Abyssinians is again made. These pamphlets have been sent through the post, but most of them, as far as is known, have had British post-marks.

After having gone fully into the question the Government are convinced that the allegations are unfounded, and that no dum-dum bullets were ever supplied to Abyssinia from Great Britain. As long ago as last February the charges were denied, and a further, and much more emphatic, refutation of them in the near future is anticipated, which, it is said, may be of a "sensational nature."

TENSE SITUATION IN PALESTINE

ELDERLY JEWS REPORTED KILLED

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

JERUSALEM, Wednesday.

The situation in Palestine remains unsettled. The Arab strike continues, and further acts of terrorism occurred to-day. Police reinforcements were sent this evening to the old city of Jerusalem, where an elderly Jew was said to have been shot dead. Crops and property are reported to have been set on fire in various parts of the country.

Police dispersed two Arab demonstrations in Jaffa this morning. As far as is known, there were no casualties.

In spite of the Arab ultimatum, Sir Arthur Wauchope, the High Commissioner, yesterday notified the Jewish agency that he had approved the labour schedule, and that he would announce later the number of immigration certificates to be granted to Jews.

CURFEW PROCLAIMED

A later telegram says:—Curfew has been proclaimed in the old City of Jerusalem, where two elderly Jews, one of them a Rabbi, were shot dead. Pedestrians are not allowed within the walls between 8 o'clock in the evening and 6 o'clock in the morning. Police reinforcements were sent this evening to the old city.

The situation in Palestine remains unsettled, and the Arab strike is continuing. Crops and property are reported to have been set on fire in various parts of the country. Police dispersed two Arab demonstrations in Jaffa this morning. As far as is known, there were no casualties.

THE FINGLAS ARRESTS

MEN TO APPEAR BEFORE MILITARY TRIBUNAL

It is understood that the thirteen men who were arrested on Sunday last when police swooped down on a gathering of men in a field in the Finglas area, will appear before the Military Tribunal at an early date.

Since they were taken into custody and lodged in the Bridewell, the entrance to the District Court buildings has been guarded by police, who closely scrutinised all who sought admittance.

Shortly after mid-day yesterday the prisoners, whose shouting in the cells could be heard in the District Court, were removed to Mountjoy Prison in two police vans, with an escort of Civic Guards and plain clothes men. The men cheered and shouted as they were being transferred, a large crowd being attracted by the noise; but there was no untoward incident.

CORK MOTOR RACE

PRACTISING TO-DAY

COURSE TOURS FOR SPECTATORS

THE Cork Motor Race week opens seriously this morning when practising takes place on the Carrigrohane circuit. For an hour the drivers will familiarise themselves at speed with the course upon which they will compete on Saturday. To-morrow morning there will be another hour of practising.

It is not expected that cars will touch anything like their best speeds this morning. The course has never before been used in a race, and the drivers have to "learn" all the corners and discover exactly how fast they can be taken. This means working up from a moderate rate of speed. Any attempt to work from the opposite direction, from too fast down, could only end unfortunately.

What might be termed the official estimates—those of the handicappers—are understood to place the probable best speed for the race at 88 to 90 miles per hour. C. E. C. Martin, the scratchman, is expected to average something around those figures. Individual laps, of course, should be faster.

If any justification of their decision to place Martin on scratch were required it was forthcoming on Saturday last when he was the outstanding driver at Donington Park, smashing the lap record and a number of distance records. Other Cork drivers taking part in the Donington meeting were "B. Bira," the Duke of Grafton, R. E. Tongue and E. K. Rayson.

Cork has given itself up whole-heartedly to Saturday's race. Special services of omnibuses have been arranged to take spectators to the course, while tours around the circuit, so that members of the public may understand the bends, corners and "straights" with which the drivers will be dealing in the race, also have been arranged for the evenings.

In the interests of safety, and also with the object of giving the fastest cars an opportunity of using their speed on the two and a half miles Carrigrohane "straight"—where J. S. Wright some years ago made a world's motor cycle speed record at 152 m.p.h.—a line has been painted down the middle of the road. The slower cars will have to keep to the "inside," except when passing even slower machines.

A number of stands have been erected around the course, and there are car parks, refreshment tents and other facilities in great profusion. Many of the Cork hotels are "booked out," but arrangements have been made to facilitate those who omitted to reserve accommodation in advance.

DRIVERS AND CARS ARRIVE

Drivers and cars arrived in the city yesterday. The majority of the English entrants came with their cars on board the m.v. Innisfallen, from Fishguard, and were greeted by Major N. McNeill, President of the Irish Motor Racing Club; Mr. D. J. Scannell, Secretary; Mr. R. H. Tilson, Chairman of the Organising Committee, and several members of the local Committee.

The drivers included:—C. E. C. Martin (Surrey), Austin Dobson (Surrey), A. Powys-Lybbe (Bradfield), G. F. A. Manby-Colegrave (London), I. O. F. Peters (Bristol), E. W. H. Dobson (Scotney), C. Mervyn White (Buckinghamshire), E. K. Ayson (London), D. L. Briault (Pinner), and R. E. Tongue (Manchester).

A large crowd watched their arrival. The drivers' cars and racing kit were taken ashore, and these included the machine of Prince Birabongse, of Siam. The Prince himself was not on board, having made the journey via Holyhead and Dublin, and motored to Cork.

The visitors, together with the local officials, subsequently paid a visit to the Fordson factory at Marina. Other English drivers—the Duke of Grafton (Norfolk) and Sir A. W. McRobert (Surrey)—arrived in Cork overnight. All the Irish drivers have also arrived.

The Fishguard party was accompanied by Mr. R. E. L. Fetherstonhaugh, the famous English driver, who "vetted" the circuit for the coming race last year, and whose approval and advice was largely responsible for its selection. All the racing cars were subsequently conveyed to the Fordson factory, where the official scrutiny was conducted by the officials of the Irish Motor Racing Club.

FROM "THE TIMES"

(BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT.)

THE TITHE BILL

The Times observes to-day in an editorial article: The Tithe Bill was approved in principle yesterday by the House of Commons after an able and, for the most part, good-humoured debate, in which criticism failed to shake the case that the bill is as good a means of ending an ancient controversy as is ever likely to be found. The controversy, which has extended over a full century, is between the tithe-payers, who complain that agriculture cannot bear the required charge, and the tithe-owners, who urge that the loss of their income would shatter the spiritual and educational work which tithe largely finances.

It was generally agreed yesterday that the Act of 1925, which is the present basis of the payment and of the collection of tithe, cannot remain undisturbed. On the one hand, the figures of cases where recourse to legal processes has to be made—often vainly—show that the tithe-payer has a sense of grievance, and suffers from incapacity to pay. On the other hand, there are too many cases of hardship among tithe-owners for the simple solution of allowing the Act to become a dead-letter wherever there is difficulty in enforcing it.

Does the bill, adds The Times, treat the tithe-payers fairly? It gives them all an immediate and substantial remission, which is what most of them want. It gives a far greater remission to those liable on heavily tithed land, and it gives an appeal in respect of arrears. In short, payment is to be based on capacity to pay, and in return for these immense concessions the payment of tithe is made a personal liability. This is no more and no less than the position of any other payer of a non-general tax, and is necessary to protect the general taxpayer, whose credit is pledged to the extent of £70,000,000. Surely, therefore, the tithe-payer can have no complaint. The case of the tithe-owner is more doubtful. Even admitting the justice of inflicting upon him, for the reasons already stated, some reduction in his receipts as a class, it would not be right to inflict individual hardships so great as those which are averted from the tithe-payer or to cause a breakdown in the work of the Church or of the tithe-owning colleges. But the bill makes considerable concessions as compared with the report of the Royal Commission.

THROUGH IRISH ONLY

A HARDSHIP ON INFANTS

GENERAL SYNOD'S PROTEST

THE EVIL OF SUNDAY DRINKING

THE ARCHBISHOP OF DUBLIN presided at the meeting of the General Synod of the Church of Ireland in Dublin yesterday, when the following resolution, on the teaching in infant schools through Irish only, was passed unanimously:—

"That this Synod supports the Board of Education in its view that, in the case of infants accustomed to the use of English only in their homes, the recent regulations of the Department which enforce the use of Irish only in infant schools are harmful to the education of the infant, and tend to stunt, rather than foster, infant mental development; and that copies of this resolution be forwarded to the President of the Executive Council and to the Minister for Education of the Irish Free State."

In proposing the resolution Mr. W. E. Thrift, Vice-Provost of Trinity College, Dublin, said that he was glad that the attention of the members of the Synod had been drawn to the magnificent work which the Rev. Canon Hodges had done in connection with the transport of Church of Ireland children to schools of their own denomination. He might say that the difficulties in the matter of transport were not over. They still required support, so that the scheme should be successfully carried out.

In the matter of teaching infant pupils through the medium of Irish only they found themselves in direct conflict with the authorities, and they asked for the unanimous support of the Board of Education in the view that they took in this matter. The Board felt strongly that the regulations as to the teaching of Irish and the use of Irish in infant classes had actually checked and interfered with the development of the children. The difficulty would be to get those in authority to accept that opinion, and he viewed the future in this matter with great apprehension, because, on looking ahead, it seemed to him that they were being forced towards a definite and clear-cut decision, the nature of which he did not want to indicate at the moment, but which they might visualise for themselves.

He would like the Synod to be wholehearted in their support of the views of the Board—that the restriction on infants who heard only English in their homes, and had to go to school where they heard only Irish, would not tend to develop them in any way, but would tend to throw their minds into a state of confusion and retard their development. They took a very serious view of that.

ON ONE GROUND ONLY

Canon Hughes (Dublin) said that they might not have been as enthusiastic as some on the teaching of Irish, but he was convinced that there was a large section of the Church of Ireland who recognised that a knowledge of Irish was useful in the education of the child. He would even go so far as to say that the child who had a knowledge of Irish had attained a higher mental development than the child who had only one language. They had aided the Government in bringing about a knowledge of Irish up to a certain standard among the children. Their teachers were as efficient—and, perhaps, more efficient—than others; at least fifty per cent. of the teachers in his school were able to give instruction through Irish as easily as through English. They were not antagonistic to Irish.

"We are making a claim for consideration on behalf of our children on one ground," he said, "and on one ground only, and that ground is education. We hold, and we believe strongly, that the education of our infants in the schools at present is being stunted by their being taught through the medium of Irish only. We ask the Government to reconsider this matter, and to consider that we are asking this from them in order that we may fulfil what we believe to be our primary duty in regard to our children, and that is that they should be educated properly."

Canon Hughes, continuing, said that what was happening at the moment was that their children were getting to hate the language. He had seen a child of five years of age being taught a story in Irish. That child seemed to be unhappy. If a child was in that position it could not learn anything, and, therefore, he agreed with those who said that the children's education was being stunted.

They were not opposing the teaching of Irish, but they were concerned about the education of their children. He hoped that the Government would help them in their earnest and honest desire to develop the education of their children in the schools; for they believed that the language of the hearth and the home was the only medium of instruction for infants in the schools.

AN INSTANCE

The Archdeacon of Armagh (the Venerable A. L. Ford) said that he had personal experience of the harmful effect of trying to teach young children through a medium that they did not understand. Three boys who had been taught in that way had come to his school, and he could say with truth that they had been the most ignorant boys in the school; they were at least three or four years educationally behind the other boys of their own age. They were a standing example of the evil of trying to teach children through a language they could not understand. Could they imagine anyone trying to talk to them through the medium of Hebrew, Syriac or Aramaic? They would find it difficult to understand what they were talking about. Imagine, then, trying to teach infants arithmetic or geography in one of those languages.

The Very Rev. R. G. S. King (Dean of Derry) said that the resolution was against the use of Irish as a medium of instruction. A great deal of Irish used in the schools was merely a modern invention. Words were used to describe things that were absolutely unknown when the Irish language was spoken before. It was an absurdity.

of a committee of the Board of Education for Northern Ireland, said that the Church of Ireland was one, and would remain one in spite of political divisions, but the Board of Education had not functioned in Northern Ireland since 1923. Did they wish to continue that position? There were in the Free State 16,262 pupils on the rolls, while in Northern Ireland there were 54,176. The future of the Church of Ireland was in the North if they looked after the children. They could not expect to reap a good harvest except they sowed the seed.

Mr. W. E. Thrift seconded the resolution, and said that the Board would function better for the whole country if they had on the Board experts who were acquainted with the peculiar problems of education in the North.

The motion was carried.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL CALENDAR

When the debate on the report of the Board of Education was resumed the Rev. H. Kinch criticised the calendar for the Sunday Schools.

Canon Hughes said that for a long time they had been trying to explain to the Synod the extraordinary difficulty of providing a calendar that would suit small Sunday Schools with only a few pupils, and at the same time be suitable for the larger schools in the cities. The position was almost an impossible one. Speaking of the work on behalf of education of the Rev. Canon Hodges, Principal of the Church of Ireland Training College, especially in connection with the provision of transport for children of the Church of Ireland, he said that it had been almost superhuman in its extent.

The Rev. C. J. Tyndall said that, while the calendar was open to criticism, it was finer than that found in the Church of England. The Archbishop, in his opening address, had referred to the decline in public worship. In what class was that decline most evident? He had not the slightest hesitation in saying that it was among the secondary school class. Some time ago he had estimated that fifty per cent. of that class had dropped from support of the Church. Now he was prepared to put the estimate at eighty per cent. Those boys who went back into all parts of the country were the intellectual leaders, and yet the Church was losing them. He believed that in the secondary schools some place should be set apart for the worship of God.

The report was adopted.

On the motion of the Rev. Canon Oulton, seconded by Mr. J. Bristow, the report of the Missionary Council was adopted.

TEMPERANCE

The Very Rev. R. Babington (Dean of Cork), proposing the adoption of the report of the Temperance Society, said that when he was a curate in Derry the people had been able to get drink with great ease. He could remember occasions of passing through a town on market days when it smelt like an operating theatre—so many people were drinking ether. Gambling was going ahead like wildfire, especially in the Free State. That had been the case particularly since gambling had been dressed in the masquerade of charity.

The Rev. W. E. Kenny, B.D., proposed: "That, in view of the growing abuse of the facilities given by the licensing laws to bona fide travellers, this Synod desires the abolition of such facilities in the interests of public morality; and that a copy of this resolution be sent to the Minister for Justice of Saorstat Eireann."

He said that the resolution was in the interests of public morality. He referred to the statements made by District Justices on the driving of cars by drunken motorists, and to those made by a District Justice at Howth, when applications had been made for the extension of licensing facilities on the Lord's Day. That District Justice had stated that he had visited Howth on several occasions and had found it a drunken shambles. The Synod desired the abolition of those facilities which gave rise to and encouraged such shameful scenes on the Lord's Day. They desired it also on the ground that the Lord's Day was sacred.

Mr. G. Bird, who seconded the motion, said that the reason that a person was a bona fide traveller was a fictitious one. The evil was being fostered not for legitimate or creature, interest, but for financial gain entirely. By the abolition of the facilities given to the bona fide traveller, something would be done against the evils of intemperance and something would be done to promote order and decency in our midst.

SUNDAY DRINKING

Mr. T. J. Smith, Barrister-at-Law, opposed the motion. He said that they should recollect that, so far as the Synod was concerned, they represented a small minority in the Free State. The majority had not the same ideas with regard to the keeping of Sundays as the proposer and seconder of the resolution.

They must face the fact that a considerable number of the people in the Free State were very anxious to have their games of football and hurling on Sundays, and there was no objection to that practice on behalf of their spiritual leaders. They must face the fact that people who wanted drink on Sundays, when such games were being played, would get drink, either legally or illegally, and the result of a resolution like the present one would be a greater illegitimate trade. He suggested that a recent important decision given by Mr. Justice Hanna ultimately might result in the same position as the sponsors of the resolution desired.

Senator Bagwell said that the resolution was most unsuitable, because the overwhelming number of bona fide travellers were not members of the Church of Ireland. If the resolution were passed by all the Churches combined it would be a different matter.

The Dean of Derry protested against the suggestion that they should not pass the resolution. No matter how small a minority they might be, they should always stand up without fear for the highest principles and for anything that would raise the moral standard.

Some of us, he said, have unfortunate experience of this particular evil. Many villages on the seaboard of Ireland have been contaminated and destroyed because certain persons wished to indulge in riotous assemblies. I have known very happy villages turned into scenes of the most abominable and riotous behaviour by people who had no responsibility, and who came from distances and made the Lord's Day a thing of horror to the people in the villages.

In passing the resolution the Synod would be strengthening the hands of numbers of people in the Free State who earnestly desired the reform, especially a number of District Justices in the Free State who had spoken out in no uncertain voice against the abuses. (Applause.)

The resolution was passed, there being only a few dissentients.

HOME REUNION

The Bishop of Ossory (Dr. Day) proposed "that the report of the Home Reunion Committee be received and adopted; that the Committee be re-appointed, and that the Synod respectfully ask the bishops to appoint a Sunday during the year to be observed in the churches of the Church of Ireland as a Day of Intercession for unity in the Church of Christ." He said that there had been a wonderful growth of friendliness among the clergy and laymen of the different Churches in the past few years.

Lord Farnham, who seconded the motion, said that the discussion between the representatives of the different Churches had been very cordial. Reunion might be much nearer than they thought, but individually he thought that they could do a great deal more than they were doing at the moment by mingling more together, by attending each other's social functions and Church Services. In that connection the clergy themselves were not altogether free from blame. There was, perhaps, a little too much jealousy on their part, a little too much suspicion. They were suspicious of members of their Churches attending the Services of other denominations.

The resolution was adopted.

Canon Lewis-Crosby, B.D., moved the adoption of the report of the Committee appointed to co-operate with the Committee appointed by the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Ireland.

He said that the Committee would co-operate with anybody that was willing to co-operate on social and moral problems, such as unemployment and bad housing.

Their Council had passed a resolution asking for a just settlement of the Italo-Abyssinian dispute. No such settlement had been reached, and it might be considered, therefore, that the resolution had been of no avail. In the same way the League of Nations had imposed sanctions which seemed to have been ineffective, but those who made their protest had saved their souls. They must remember that the nations that had imposed sanctions had done so at great economic and financial loss.

"I was glad to see," added Canon Lewis-Crosby, "that the Bishops of the Anglican Communion had uttered strong protests against that cruel war and its methods. I would I could say the same of the Roman Catholic Church, but, alas, I cannot. Although the Roman Catholic churches in Italy rang their bells and sang their Te Deum for victory, we had hoped that the silence of the Vatican had meant disapproval. The Pope's statement yesterday dashed these hopes to the ground, and that statement will be long remembered by the enemies of the Church."

The report was adopted.

The report of the Widows' and Orphans' Fund was approved on the motion of the Rev. T. F. Campbell, seconded by Mr. R. H. Ryland.

Lord Justice FitzGibbon acted as assessor.

CONGESTION IN DUBLIN

DEPRECIATION OF HOUSE PROPERTY

TERENURE RESIDENTS' REPRESENTATIONS

MR. D. HICKIE, Local Government inspector, in the City Hall, yesterday, resumed the inquiry into the Corporation's application for the compulsory purchase of certain lands in the Terenure area, for the erection of working-class dwellings. Dr. Myles Keogh represented the Lord Mayor.

Mr. Casey said that dwellings for the working classes could be erected in more suitable districts than a neighbourhood like Terenure, where the effect of erecting such structures would bring about a reduction of the value of existing property.

DEPRECIATION OF VALUES

Two owners—Mr. A. J. Stafford and Mr. Guildford—gave evidence to the effect that the erection of such buildings would substantially depreciate the value of their properties in the Kimmage road.

Mr. Lavery, objecting on behalf of 124 residents in the Mayfield road, Terenure Park, Ashdale road, Eaton square, and other places in the neighbourhood, said that their protest was not in any way to be taken as an objection to the erection of dwellings for the working-classes. Those ratepayers whom he represented would be very heavy losers if the scheme went through. Their claim should be considered by the Inspector and by the Minister, because they could not go before an arbitrator and receive compensation.

The total valuation of the property of those whom he represented amounted to £9,000 in round figures, and if the 418 three-roomed dwellings now proposed were erected, irreparable damage would be done to a most substantial section of the public.

A number of owners gave evidence in support of counsel's statement.

GRAVE CONGESTION

Alderman T. Kelly, Chairman of the Corporation Housing Committee, called in support of the scheme, said, in reply to Mr. Rice, K.C., that the congestion in the centre of the city was very grave. The density there was 65 families to the acre.

In a report made to the Housing Committee in 1914 which was investigating the conditions of working-class dwellings in the city it was shown that there were then 3,624 houses unfit for human habitation, and these houses existed to-day, but twenty years the worse for wear.

A resident of Ashdale road, in evidence, said that as a result of the scheme his house would depreciate in value to the extent of £250 or £300.

Mr. Jones, architect, in answer to Mr. Lavery, said that he estimated that the existing residential houses would depreciate from 25 to 30 per cent. in value if the scheme was carried out.

The inquiry was adjourned until 11 o'clock this morning.

WOMEN TELEGRAPH WORKERS

BELFAST CONFERENCE RESOLUTIONS

At the conference of the Post Office Controlling Officers' Association in Belfast yesterday, Mr. E. C. Gates, J.P., Manchester, presiding, the recruitment of female labour in the Telegraph Service to the total exclusion of youths was criticised by Mr. Kitching, Birmingham, who moved a resolution condemning the policy. It was, he said, one of the fallacies of those in high places to think that girls were better than men for that class of work. For sustained effort and high output youths could not be beaten, yet the Post Office closed its doors to youths on the Telegraph side.

Mr. H. E. J. Moon, Liverpool, in seconding, said that it was not the general desire of women that they should displace men in industry.

Mr. C. F. Knight, Leeds, said that flooding men's work with female labour was undoubtedly detrimental. "'The hand the rocks the cradle rules the world,' but they could not do that in instrument rooms," he declared amidst laughter.

When Miss Mary Herring, C.T.O., announced that she had risen to support the resolution, the delegates applauded. Mr. Knight, she said, sounded vicious. (Laughter). She declared that she would like to see no women in the labour market at all, but, as things were at present, where work was suitable, women had a right to a certain proportion of it.

The resolution was carried.

The conference adopted a resolution calling for a seven hours day for all supervising classes in the Association, and another resolution demanding a shorter working week.

HIGH TAXATION RESULTS IN FREE STATE

TWO VIEWS IN THE DAIL

"DEPRESSION" AND "PROSPERITY"

MR. DILLON AND THE EXAMPLE OF SPAIN

MR. DILLON (U.I., Donegal) resumed the debate on the general Budget resolution in the Dail yesterday. For the first time in his Budget speech the Minister had discarded material gold and gilded diction. All pretence of reduction of taxation had gone by the board, the pretence of reducing the number of civil servants had also gone; the Government had also jettisoned their promise to abolish unemployment. On the 9th February, 1932, President de Valera said: "We have a cure for unemployment," and asked the electors not to be satisfied with Deputy Cosgrave. At that time the number of unemployed was 29,331, whereas now the number unemployed was 136,858.

Mr. DILLON, continuing, said that, if it became the practice with responsible democratic leaders to make statements which they knew were not true, or to make promises which they had not the slightest intention of carrying out, disillusionment would destroy democratic institutions in this country. If the weapon of falsehood continued to be used, a dictatorship, established from Left or Right, was going to prevail, and once that was established democratic institutions could never be restored, except through a sanguinary revolution which he would not like to live to see. He charged the Fianna Fail Government and Party with deliberately living from day to day, without any regard for the future solvency of the country. If this was continued the country would pay bitterly for it in the long run.

Gross revenue amounted to £35,000,000, and hidden taxation amounted to £4,000,000. The total burden of the nation this year was about £40,000,000. Two years ago the Minister stated that the dead-weight national debt was reduced by £5,000,000 since he came into office, but now, he said, it is £5,000,000 in excess of what it was before he came into office. Therefore, the dead-weight debt must have increased by £10,000,000 during the last two years.

The tragedy of it all was that the follies of the Fianna Fail Government would, if permitted, not only wreck the country, but would drag the people—all the people—with it.

SPAIN AND ITALY

Unless the agricultural industry were put on a sound foundation the country was going to collapse, and they were going to have a denial of the many things the people should have in a Christian, democratic State. They used to be proud of the fact that they were one of the most Catholic countries in Europe. Spain was looked upon as one of their sisters in that faith. She had gone over to the basest form of tyranny, and to a type of Government inimical to all they believed in—a type of Government which promoted violence and desecration throughout its territory.

Italy was another nation which they were proud to describe as a Catholic nation, but it had made the name of Catholic nation a bye-word. He directed attention to the dangers inherent in the Budget situation at the present time, and said that nothing would save the country from disaster, except an overwhelming defeat of the Fianna Fail Government.

Mr. O'DONOVAN (U.I. Cork, W.) said that they all remembered the promises of the Fianna Fail party, and their statements when in Opposition that the people were groaning under the burden of taxation which was then 22 millions. They undertook to reduce that sum by two millions, but instead had increased it by over eight millions, while unemployment was more rife than ever, and poverty, misery and want was all over the country.

Mr. CORRY (F.F. Cork, E.) said that the Government had to tackle the problem of insanitary houses for agricultural labourers, and in a couple of years it would be solved. The Fianna Fail Government had to overtake ten years of inactivity of Cumann na nGaedhael Government. The increased taxation had gone to the poor—to those who had been for ten long years ignored. The farmers generally were glad of not having to look altogether to Britain.

WIDESPREAD TAXATION

Mr. D. MORRISSEY (U.I. Tipperary) said that assuming that the ½d. per lb. on sugar was to be passed on to the consumer it would mean only from 1d. to 1½d. per week. That would be the great benefit of the budget. Did the house not remember that the tax had been put on the sugar last year with 4d. on tea and 8s. on wheat, as well as the 5s. on coal. The country was paying more for its butter than it should, and the last budget had also brought the tax on cinemas. The farmers were infinitely worse off than they were five years ago, and nobody knew it better than Deputy Corry. In addition to the taxation on necessaries, practically every single household article was taxed, and as a result of Government activities the purchasing power of the ordinary man's wages had been reduced by 5s. or 6s.

Mr. F. MacDERMOT (Ind., Roscommon) asked if the Minister would explain the position regarding sur-tax and corporation profits tax. Did a basis exist for the corporation profits tax, or did it operate simply as a concealed income tax, bearing unfairly and discriminately on the shareholder in an Irish corporation, as compared with the shareholder in a corporation, say, in Great Britain? If it did not have a basis other than the revenue, why should the Minister not be frank and raise the money by increasing income tax?

A PLEASANT SURPRISE

If they faced facts they must admit that the country was able to bear a larger burden of taxation than they had thought possible. To him it was a pleasant surprise that in spite of expenditure that filled him with foreboding, revenue was coming in satisfactorily, and it was only fair to congratulate the Minister and the Government on the buoyancy in revenue of which he had spoken. Of course, it could be over-stated, but it was a fact.

There was no evidence of their being on the verge of bankruptcy. So far as the fiscal position was concerned there were not many countries he would change places with. While he had been forced to revise his ideas as to the amount of taxation which the country could bear, he believed that much of the taxation was regrettable, and would be unnecessary if the Government had not plunged into an economic dispute with Great Britain.

None of them could afford to throw stones in the matter of making election promises, but the statements made by Fianna Fail before they came into office were more grotesque than any slight errors he had made.

The great blot on the Budget was that the Minister had not realised the necessity of doing something for the benefit of the farmers, though he had time to think of doing something for the unemployed. If he had taken steps to come to a financial settlement on reasonable terms he would have benefited both the farmers and the unemployed.

THE MINISTER'S BOUQUETS

Dr. O'HIGGINS (U.I., Leix-Offaly) said that the Minister had showered bouquets at himself, but what was he jubilant about? It all boiled down to this, that the Minister had congratulated himself on the fact that he had abstracted £10,000,000 more per annum from the people of this country than had been done before the time he took up office. In the voluminous document that made his Budget speech two words were missing; two words that in the past were frequently on the lips of the Minister and his colleagues—the words, "economy" and "reduction."

As a result of the very rapid increase in taxation the country now was experiencing the economic distress which was foretold by Fianna Fail in Opposition at a time when taxation was very much lower. The country now found itself in the position of having to find the staggering sum of two and a half millions to grapple with the fringe of the unemployment question.

The outstanding characteristic of the Budget was its failure to give relief of any kind.

PROSPERITY WAVE

Mr. O'KELLY (F.F., Meath) said there was a wave of prosperity developing in the country that was never there before. The rise in the value of land was a clear indication that there was nothing wrong with the country. No doubt, certain classes of farmers were in a difficult position, but nobody expected that a Government would have all the people right at the same time.

Mr. FitzGERALD-KENNEY (U.I., Mayo) said there was not a single person who would not say that rural Ireland was suffering under a very great depression at the present moment, and would not admit that the policy of the Government had brought greater poverty than ever before. What was the use of telling them they got great wealth owing to the policy of the Government when everybody in the House knew the statement was false.

They were only spending one-half of the money allocated in the Budget for social services, the rest was going in wasteful expenditure. The two-and-a-half millions that it was proposed to spend on the relief of unemployment was not new money being applied for this purpose, but more or less a transferment from one account to another. However, he welcomed it, and hoped it would be successful, because he was glad that his party's criticism inside the House and outside it had borne fruit with the Minister, and that the Fianna Fail Party had been forced to change their stand and to no longer spend money on doles, but in the giving of employment.

THE RELIEF ON SUGAR

Alderman CORISH (Labour, Wexford) said that the relief given in respect of sugar would, he feared, benefit the trader more than the consumer. He would like to hear from the Minister for Industry and Commerce how the referees or umpires arrived at decisions that men were not genuinely seeking employment. He would like the Minister to tell the House where it was that only nine men turned up to look for work where seventy-three men were required, and what sort was the work. Men should not be expected to walk unreasonable distances for work.

In order to help the Government most local authorities were almost at the limit of their borrowing capacity. He suggested to the Minister that something should be done in the near future to admit of local authorities borrowing more than they were permitted to do under the present regulations.

Mr. J. P. KELLY (F.F., Meath) said that agriculture was benefiting to the extent of the money now circulating by reason of the new industries.

Mr. M. RODDY (U.I., Sligo-Leitrim) said that if money continued to be spent at the present rate it would be a very serious matter for the country.

The general feeling throughout the country was that the local authorities were spending too much for the present on social services.

The Budget, in his opinion, was a bad Budget, and the Government did not deserve any congratulation whatever for it.

Mr. McGOVERN (U.I., Cavan) said that they were told once by the party now in power that a good Government needed no army. What did they find? In 1933-4 the estimate for the Army was £1,160,000, and this year it stood at £1,529,967. Who were they going to fight? As regards the relief of unemployment, this £1,700,000 that the Government was putting up was conditional on the local bodies finding the balance of £800,000. That was another instance of the Minister shifting his responsibility on to the shoulders of the local authorities.

Mr. DOWDALL (F.F., Cork) said that there was nothing in the argument that they were living beyond their means as far as taxation was concerned, because the money that was being spent by the Government went back into circulation and gave employment.

Mr. J. M. BURKE (U.I., Cork, W.) said that there were good points in the Budget, and there was great reserve power in the country, but the State could not subsist for all time on its capital or credit. He challenged anyone to deny that the cost of living had gone up and the standard of living had gone down, and that agriculture was not as thriving as it was five years ago. The day was not far distant when the Government would have to answer for many things.

MINISTER AND OPPOSITION

Mr. SEAN LEMASS (Minister for Industry and Commerce) said that the quarterly return of the Currency Commission showed that the cost-of-living index figure in 1931 was 160 (the lowest point reached while the Opposition was in power). The figure last year was 156. If they took food alone the fall was from 141 in 1931 to 134 in 1935. At the same time the average wage increase was 13 per cent. The Opposition's speeches suggested that they were prophets of disaster outrivalling Job. The Minister for Finance had referred to the Book of Lamentations, but the Book of Lamentations was a comic song in comparison with the speeches they had heard. The fact was, however, that every index that economists studied in relation to the country pointed to progress.

The total amount in the Post Office Savings Banks to the credit of depositors was the highest on record, and that in spite of the increased taxation that the Opposition referred to. It meant, however, that if the Opposition's exaggerated figure of taxation was correct the effect of the Fianna Fail policy in increasing the prosperity of the country had been even greater than Fianna Fail claimed. Obviously there would be an increase in the national income, and the various measures adopted to increase the wealth, the production of the country, and the standard of living of the people, had been successful. That had been done in spite of certain increases in Government expenditure, but the increase in taxation was considerably less for all the years in which the Government had been in office than one-third of the lowest figure quoted by any member of the Opposition.

"INNOCENT VICTIMS"

Referring to the suggestion that social services were an evil, and that the volume of production was not sufficient to maintain them, the Minister said that all the existing social services were essential in any civilised country. The justification for the various measures adopted by the Government, particularly the Unemployment Assistance Act, was the Government's belief that, no matter where unemployment existed, it was a social evil that must be remedied, and for which the unemployed were in no way responsible.

"We regard them," said the Minister, "as the innocent victims of ten years' misgovernment by a Parliament in this House, and a hundred years of misgovernment by an alien Government, which left us deficient in organisation, with our resources unexploited and undeveloped, and our ability to deal with complex economic problems definitely impaired. The main purpose of every member of the Government is to reorganise economic conditions here, develop the resources of this island, and exploit those resources in a manner that unemployment, and the evils that follow it, may in due course be abolished.

"In my opinion, we are about half-way through our programme—at least about half-way. Half the industries, the establishment of which was consequential on that policy, have been created, and some progress has been made in the reorganisation of agriculture. Our estimates in regard to additional employment have been more than fulfilled."

COMPLETING THE PROGRAMME

The MINISTER said that they could claim credit for getting half through their programme, and could demonstrate to the people of this country that the completion of the programme would be the results they foretold. Their calculations were, if anything, on the conservative side. Fianna Fail had always erred on the side of conservatism. Many things that were regarded as luxuries in 1931 they had brought within the reach of the people because incomes were increasing.

Professor O'SULLIVAN (U.I., Kerry) said that the Minister would find some difficulty in proving that the people and the conditions of the country at present were satisfactory.

Progress was reported, and the House adjourned until to-day.

A Paris telegram says:—The Administrative Committee of the General Federation of Labour announced that they cannot accept the invitation of the Socialist Party to take part in M. Blum's new Government, but they are willing to collaborate in technical organisations.

BRITISH BUDGET INQUIRY

MR. BATES'S DEAL WITH MR. THOMAS

£20,000 FOR RIGHTS OF AUTOBIOGRAPHY

THE chief points of interest in yesterday's proceedings before the Judicial Tribunal which is inquiring into the alleged leakage of British Budget secrets were Sir Warren Fisher's account of the Treasury's precautions against leakage; the evidence given by Mrs. Stubbs, secretary to Mr. Alfred Bates, and Mr. Bates's own account of his friendly relations with Mr. J. H. Thomas.

Mr. Monckton put the direct question whether Mr. J. H. Thomas on any occasion had told Mr. Bates anything of the contents of the Budget, and Mr. Bates answered: "Certainly not."

Asked if he had ever done business with Mr. J. H. Thomas, Mr. Bates replied that he had had but one business transaction with him, and that was in connection with the rights of Mr. Thomas's autobiography.

THE LETTERS

Mr. Monckton then read the following correspondence which had passed between Bates (whose letter was marked "Private and Confidential") and Mr. Thomas:—

"My dear Jim,—Confirming our conversation together on the subject of your autobiography, I am prepared to give you £20,000 for the exclusive literary rights of your life, including photographs of yourself and those who would be associated with the story. You and your wife are to supply me with the data. If necessary, I will lend you a stenographer. In the unlikely and unhappy event of you not living to complete it, your wife is to do so. The work is to be completed within six months of your retiring from politics. I am at liberty to publish the work in serial form, book form, or both. In the event of profits exceeding £25,000, you and your wife are to have half of all sums produced by the book in excess of such figures."

Mr. J. H. Thomas replied:—

"Dear Alf,—I am in receipt of your offer, and, in fairness to myself, I do not want you to think you have been too generous, inasmuch as many people have made offers to me of very substantial sums if I would agree to bind myself to them. What influences me mainly is the fact that I have had a long run, and will be compelled to take things easier, but especially the fact that you would be prepared to make an advance at once. If you can get the house in your district, which you say is in the market, and on which my wife is very keen, subject to this, and on the clear understanding that it does not prevent we writing any special articles, I accept the terms."

Mr. Monckton—Did you make arrangements for the purchase of that house?

Mr. Bates—I did.

TREASURY METHODS

Sir Warren Fisher, telling of the Treasury's measures for ensuring secrecy, said that they were so constant that it became a case of "continually checking" an almost automatic frame of mind. Officials were so accustomed to dealing with confidential information that it was second nature to be reticent. The Chancellor's final decision to change the rates of taxation was made on April 8, but there was no written information on the subject before that date. So far as printing was concerned, the first release of the secret information was April 10.

Sir Maurice Gwyer (First Parliamentary Counsel) stated that the resolution affecting taxes were drafted in his office, but the figure was a blank until the morning on which the Budget was opened. Neither he nor his office would know that there was going to be a change.

Mrs. Stubbs, secretary to Mr. Alfred Bates, said that she first knew that he was inquiring about Budget insurance on April 14. On April 16 she handed a cheque to Mr. Ward for the cover note of £3,000 insurance effected at fifteen guineas per cent. Mr. Bates told her that he had had a conversation with Belisha and Co., and had placed an insurance in his son's name for £1,000, and another in her name for £1,000. He told her to give her personal cheque, and to get a cheque from Mr. Bates, junior. At no time did Mr. Bates say that there was any secrecy about the insurance.

The inquiry was adjourned.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

A DUBLIN DEMONSTRATION

Three generations—daughters, mothers and grand-mothers—took part in the Women's League of Health and Beauty demonstration at the Mansion House, Dublin, yesterday.

More than one hundred Dublin members of the League, with their leader, Miss Prunella Stack, were engaged in the exercises which they had learned at their evening classes. Two visiting teams—from Belfast and Dundalk—also took part.

All the exercises, which had a pleasing grace about them, were designed for health, figure and grace, and were carried out to music provided by the League's head pianist from London, Miss Deirdre Welsh, and members of the "Aristocrats" band. The Misses Cinderella Stack, Kathleen O'Rourke (Dublin teacher), and Olive Dacus acted as leaders with Miss Prunella Stack.

Credit is due to Miss Kathleen O'Rourke, who did so much to produce the demonstration, and also to Miss Marie McQuaide, who has lent considerable assistance to the League in Dublin from the time of its inception.

Dr. T. Kerry Reddin, who acted as chairman at the afternoon demonstration, said that during a recent tour of Europe he had been greatly impressed by the fact that youth all over the world was standing out for physical culture. Not only did it make for physical fitness in the present generation, but also for the fitness of future generations. There were 1,400 members of the League in Dublin, and he could approve of the exercises from the medical point of view.

A sister of the late Mrs. Bagot Stack, who founded the organisation—Mrs. A. J. Cruickshank—said the exercises were based on the movements in the exercises of the ancient Greeks, and they definitely assisted healthy motherhood. The League, which began in 1930 with sixteen members, had now more than 90,000 on its roll, and the movement had spread not only throughout the Dominions, but to such other countries as Denmark and the United States.

Dr. G. Tierney, who presided at the evening demonstration, said that the occasion was unique so far as the branches of the League were concerned, in as much as it was the first time that the two leaders of the organisation—Mrs. Cruickshank and Miss Stack—had been able to appear together. It was interesting to note that Mrs. Cruickshank and the late Mrs. Bagot Stack (foundress of the League) were the daughters of an Irish doctor who had practised in Dublin, so they might, he thought, regard the League as being of Irish origin.

Mrs. Cruickshank outlined the growth of the League, which, she said, had a history of great achievement. Her sister had started with the idea of making women health-conscious and of showing them by means of the exercises taught how they could keep that health within themselves and pass the knowledge on to others. They were proud of the Irish origin of the movement. The movement had been accused of being a commercial enterprise, but nobody connected with the movement was in any way commercially-minded. They were a benefit to the community and not a commercial enterprise.

First and second prizes in a competition for graceful walking, on which the audience voted, were won by Mrs. Craig, Dundalk, and Miss Edith Lough, Dublin, respectively, and Mrs. Hilda Leet, Dublin, was the winner of a sequence competition.

OBJECTION TO ENGLISHMAN

SIX COUNTIES M.P.'S PROTEST

DEFINITION OF "EGGS" WANTED

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

BELFAST, Wednesday.

IN the Northern Parliament to-day, on the Committee stage of the Road and Railway Transport Bill,

Mr. Beattie (Labour) objected to the first clause, which provides for the appointment of a chairman to the Appeals Tribunal who is a practising barrister of England of not less than ten years' standing. He moved the deletion of the word "England." There were many barristers in Northern Ireland who were competent to fill the position.

Major McCormick (Unionist) spoke of the money to be spent on the salary of a deputy chairman, and said that all these charges against the revenue of the Board would drive the people back to the railways, because travelling on the roads was bound to become dearer.

Mr. E. S. Murphy, K.C. (U.), said that the main objection to this clause seemed to be to exclude Sir Lyndon Macassey, K.C., from the position of chairman of this tribunal. He added that the principle of excluding barristers from his profession because they come from England would have the most disastrous consequences on the profession in Northern Ireland and the Free State.

Sir R. Lynn (U.) said that it would be very dangerous if this Sinn Fein attitude in regard to appointments was adopted in Northern Ireland.

The amendment was defeated, and the Committee stage passed.

On the Committee stage of the Egg Marketing Bill,

Mr. T. J. Campbell, K.C. (Nat.) moved an amendment, the effect of which was to apply the same conditions to all eggs, whether imported into Northern Ireland or produced in Northern Ireland.

He also asked if the definition included eggs imported into Northern Ireland and, if it did apply, did that mean that the same conditions of grading, etc., applied to foreign eggs as well as Northern Ireland eggs? Alternatively, would they bear some official mark of inferiority to distinguish them? As he understood it, that Parliament had no power to prohibit the importation of eggs or any other foreign goods into Northern Ireland, so he would like to know whether the regulations would be such as to prejudice the sale of such eggs in Northern Ireland. This was a matter of some importance.

Mr. Minford (U.) referred to "the calamity" which had occurred in Belfast during the past few days, as a result of which about fifty people had contracted food poisoning. This was caused, he understood, through Chinese eggs.

The Minister, replying, said that there was already a distinguishing mark on certain eggs in Northern Ireland. Under an Imperial Government Act all eggs not from Great Britain had to be marked "imported" or "foreign."

Mr. Beattie—Has the Minister power to prohibit the importation of foreign eggs?

The Minister— No, sir.

The amendment was withdrawn.

MILITARY OUT

GREEK GENERAL STRIKE CLASHES

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

ATHENS, Wednesday.

Despite the most severe measures taken by the Government to enforce order, there have been clashes everywhere between strikers and police during the twenty-four hours' general strike in Greece to-day in sympathy with the Salonika tobacco factory strikers.

In Athens strikers waylaid and stoned a few tramcars, smashing the windows, and also damaged shops in the principal streets. A number of arrests was made. So far there have been no serious casualties, though clashes occurred among the sailors and dock workers at Piræus. The general public, although nervous, has been carrying on with its normal routine. Soldiers have been guarding post offices, telephone exchanges and bakeries, and police were on duty at restaurants. Armed guards protected the foreign Legations.

Striking tramway employés, who had been called to the colours, were escorted to work from their homes by the police early to-day. Police patrolled the various centres, many of them in lorries.

HINDENBURG NEARING HOME

PASSES OVER IRELAND

Germany's record-breaking Zeppelin, Hindenburg, on her return voyage from America is expected to land at the airport at Frankfurt-on-Main at five o'clock this morning.

Flying over the Atlantic at an average speed of well over 80 miles an hour, at four o'clock last afternoon the airship was 465 miles away from Land's End, and later was seen passing the southern coast of Ireland.

On Tuesday morning at 4.27 she left Lakehurst with 53 passengers on board and by midnight was 450 miles out into the Atlantic. Thus it appears that she may exceed by three hours the time of 46 hours which Dr. Eckener, her commander, hopes she will take for the voyage.

The Hindenburg is to start on her second North American trip next Saturday.

NEGUS CHEERED

JERUSALEM, Wednesday.

Two picturesquely clad consular bodyguards, solemnly tapping long silver-mounted staves on the cobble stones in the narrow streets of the old city, headed a procession to-day when the Emperor of Abyssinia visited the Armenian Convent of St. James. With him were the Crown Prince, the Duke of Harar, and Ras Kassa, the veteran commander on the northern front. Hundreds of bystanders warmly cheered the Emperor as he passed through the streets of the walled city.

This afternoon the Negus entertained Arab newspapermen to tea.

After the fight—which occurred in the prison brickyard—21 convicts escaped in a lorry and commandered a car, taking four warders as hostages. Eight were recaptured later. All had been wounded.

UNEMPLOYMENT RELIEF

"GOVERNMENT EVADING RESPONSIBILITY"

At the Dublin Board of Assistance yesterday, Mr. P. S. Doyle, T.D. (Chairman) presiding, a letter was received from the Department of Industry and Commerce with reference to a communication from the Board regarding the subject of unemployment assistance. It stated that there was no legal authority to pay unemployment assistance to any applicant who failed to satisfy the statutory conditions and was not free from the statutory disqualifications laid down in the Acts. The Minister had no function in the payment of relief to able-bodied persons, and suggested that any representations on that subject should be addressed to the Minister for Local Government.

Mr. R. Blake, Co.C., said the Act should either be abolished or framed in a way that would be of benefit to the taxpayer. The Minister was responsible for giving work or assistance, but he was not doing either.

The Chairman stated that hundreds of people in Dublin were refused unemployment assistance on the ground that they were not genuinely seeking work.

The letter was marked "noted."

The relief supervisors reported that, for the week ended Saturday last, 7,057 cases were relieved at a cost of £3,153 11s. 6d., which was an increase of 28 cases and £21 6s. 8d. in cash over the preceding week, and an increase of 510 cases and £156 5s. in cash as compared with the corresponding week last year. The majority of the cases transferred from relief to unemployment assistance in April, 1934, having now been disallowed assistance at the Labour Exchange, were back again receiving able-bodied relief at Chatham row. This was costing £150 a week over the normal expenditure.

Mr. Gately said that they were told by the Minister that the ratepayers would be relieved to a considerable extent. Now, however, these people were thrown back on the rates, although they had been continuously looking for work, which they could not get.

Mrs. Maud Walsh said that it was a libel on these unfortunate people to say that they were not genuinely seeking work.

Mr. Gately asked the chairman did he not think that the Government was evading its responsibility in the matter.

The Chairman said there was no question whatever about that.

CHILDREN'S DANCING MATINEE

Children from Miss Muriel Catt's School of Dancing danced for charity before a crowded audience at the Gaiety Theatre, Dublin, yesterday afternoon.

The matinée was in aid of the Richmond Institution for the Industrious Blind, and the dancers presented a fairy story of "Snow White and the Seven Little Dwarfs," followed by the Greek legend of Arachne. The dancing was carried out in a delightful manner, and all the speaking parts were rendered very distinctly and without any show of self-consciousness on the part of the young players.

"Snow White and the Seven Little Dwarfs" was presented in seven pleasing little scenes, while Arachne gave the audience an opportunity of seeing the children in Grecian dancing.

After the performance Lord HolmPatrick, who was introduced by Captain Claude Smith, Appeals Secretary to the Richmond Institution, apologised for the absence of Lady Holm-Patrick (who is indisposed), and thanked the little performers for their work.

SCRUBB'S CLOUDY AMMONIA

A Tokyo telegram says:—Twenty-seven children and fifteen adults died from poisoning and 1,810 persons became ill following the gift distribution of Japanese cakes, composed of rice paste and soya bean paste, to school pupils after an athletic meeting last Saturday. The police are following up reports that the cakes were poisoned maliciously.

Suffered INDIGESTION for years

NOW EATS AND ENJOYS ANYTHING

YOU can eat what you like when you like—without suffering if you follow the advice of Mr. G. Neaves, of Maidstone, Kent. Read his amazing letter:

"I suffered for years with indigestion—scared to eat any pastries or cakes, etc. I bought a bottle of 'Bisurated' Magnesia and really I've been a different man. I just had to write—I feel so fit now."

'Bisurated' Magnesia will bring relief to any stomach sufferer in a few minutes, because it contains special ingredients which recent medical research and X-ray experiments prove to be the quickest and most effective. If you are troubled with indigestion, gastritis, wind or other stomach trouble, be certain to ask your chemist for 'Bisurated' Magnesia; this is the only way you can be sure of quick and lasting relief! Every chemist stocks 'Bisurated' Magnesia (powder or tablets). Your first dose will prove that you can banish your stomach trouble in a few minutes.

SURPRISE

...Light Afforded on ...he Derby Problem

FROM OUR TRAVELLING CORRESPONDENT.

NEWMARKET, Wednesday Night.

WE got no nearer, I think, to a solution of the problem of the Derby when the American colt, Flares, owned by Mr. William Woodward and trained by Captain Boyd-Rochfort, won the Newmarket Stakes to-day by a head and two lengths from Fearless Fox and His Grace, Flares being a 100 to 7 chance, and with Valerian the outsider of the party of eight runners. As everyone seems to be acting, in the case of three-year-olds, on "what is latest is best," people took 20 to 1 about Flares after the race.

No plans have been made for running Flares in the Derby, and as Mr. Woodward is in New York his trainer will have to consult him as to whether he wishes to run Flares as well as his other colt, Boswell. In all probability he will decide to run.

Flares is a big brother to Omaha, and came here as a yearling, but was not seriously trained last season. On his only appearance this year he finished eight lengths behind Noble Turk at Hurst Park. No wonder he was the ontsider of the party to-day.

A Good Race

It was a good race, in which Fearless Fox and one of his stable companions, Golden Martlet, made the running, with Daytona, who was joint favourite with the King's Fairey, not far behind. In the Dip Flares had joined Fearless Fox, and there was never much between them up the hill, Flares appearing to be having rather the better of it. Fearless Fox, however, stayed on well.

What the form amounts to I do not profess to know. Fearless Fox was not considered in the same light as Daytona early in the season, but after the ominous way the latter weakened in the Dip I am afraid Daytona must be put down as a non-stayer, and if Jarvis is to win the Derby it may be with Fearless Fox, who is by Foxlaw and is bred to stay.

Ran in Blinkers

His Grace, who was third and in blinkers, ran as if he had become cunning. The King's colt, Fairey, was fifth, but it is not likely that he will be started for the Derby. It will surprise most people if the winner of the Derby was in the field this afternoon.

There was some betting on the Derby on the course, and the odds against Taj Akbar, Rhodes Scholar and Pay Up were extended to 100 to 11, which was taken in the case of each.

A colt that remains in the Derby, but has never been dreamt of as a Derby horse, Haulfryn, won the Shelford Plate, over a mile and a half, and won it in good style, too, by three lengths from Queen's Shilling; the hot favourite, Blandonian, finishing fourth.

Haulfryn a Stayer

Haulfryn had never been placed in a race before, and the best that can be said of him is that he stays. If Mr. Minoprio should decide to start him in the Derby there would be a new factor in the situation about jockeys for the Derby colts.

Even supposing the Beckhampton owners relinquished their claim on Gordon Richards, Miss Wilmot, in whose stable Haulfryn is trained, has a second claim on him, and she would be entitled to exercise it. Probably she will not; but one never knows.

After this race Lord Derby's Isca, who had been left in the Derby, dropped dead on returning to the paddock. He had shown promise as a two-year-old, but had been running badly this season. He was by Caerleon out of Gondolette's famous daughter, Seremissima, the dam of the St. Leger winner, Tranquil, as well as of Selene.

An Easy Winner

Lieutenant-Colonel Loder had a winner, Tip the Wink, the first he has had since Mr. Gilpin moved from Clarehaven. This is a daughter of Tetratema and Golden Silence, who won the Spring T.Y.O. Stakes with great ease by three lengths from Flying Scotsman, with Daring Duchess third, and the favourite, Grandjo, unplaced. Tip the Wink, who had been unplaced to Foray at Sandown, was a good second favourite.

The last race of the day, the Chesterfield Plate, was easily won by Mrs. Arthur James's good-looking colt, Citadel, who had four lengths to spare from Allensford, the favourite, Malplaquet, being beaten back into third place.

Selections

The Payne Stakes, one and a half miles, is the principal race here to-morrow, but it is seldom a good guide to the Derby, and is not likely to be on this occasion. The best may be Lord Derby's ST. MAGNUS.

The Norfolk T.Y.O. Stakes may be won by PLANTAGRA, and the Bedford T.Y.O. Stakes by BURLINGTON LASS.

GALTEE MORE.

PLANTAGRA'S CHANCE

St. Magnus may Atone in the Payne Stakes

CHIEF interest at Newmarket's final stage to-day will probably centre in the Payne Stakes, in which St. Magnus is due to run. St. Magnus fell from grace somewhat as a Derby proposition when, with long odds laid on him, he was well beaten by Magnet here a fortnight ago. Now he has a good opportunity to reinstate himself with the public, as the opposition, apart from Kanuck and Satanic, will not be strong.

Kanuck has been placed in both his races this season. He has given satisfaction in his gallops at Manton, and will go to the post a fit and fancied candidate. Satanic, too, has shown consistency. He has one victory to his credit, and has been runner-up in his other three races. Satanic may go very close. It may be an unwise policy to oppose

ST. MAGNUS.

The Flying Handicap will set backers a pretty problem. This race will mark the first appearance of the season of Strathcarron. I understand that the seven-year-old, who is now under the tutelage of H. Hartigan, is very fit and every bit as fast as he was last season. At the weights, however, I prefer Valkyrie, who is expected to show great improvement on his Alexandra Park running last month.

There is much to like about Flammarion, who will have the assistance of the champion jockey. Flammarion ran very well when second to Malplaquet, at the first spring meeting held here.

I know Tetrazone to be strongly fancied. He beat all except Ipsdem at Kempton Park last week. That was good form. Rescuda, only narrowly beaten by Sarah Churchill and Gantry at Sandown last time out, may be on the mark again. Wootton's charge is long overdue for a victory. Diana Buttercup, Achtung and Will of Wales make most appeal of the remainder. The choice falls on TETRAZONE.

The Wilburton Handicap has a very open appearance. Merricroft, Rookwood, Naginata, Cash, Nasu and Pike Barn are the half-dozen I shall take against the field. Merricroft displayed his liking for this course when winning here a couple of weeks ago. He is fancied to supplement the success.

I noticed Rookwood running on when second to Inspector Poutait at Derby last month. He may go one better this time.

Naginata has been moving in grand style at Manton since running Fairshaw to two lengths at the previous fixture here. I am advised not to make Nasu a loser. He did not reveal anything like his best form last time out. He may be the biggest danger to ROOKWOOD.

Plantagra, considered unlucky when beaten three-parts of a length by Syntony filly at Epsom, has a chance to make amends in the Norfolk Stakes. Temperance, a good winner at Thirsk last time out, and Flying Star are likely to run forward. I have most liking for

PLANTAGRA.

Burlington Lass and Salacia, first and second respectively here a fortnight ago, may fight out the finish of the Bedford Stakes. I think will confirm the form.

BURLINGTON LASS

Red Hackle, Wood Pulp and Malvy Pense may figure prominently in the Harston Selling Plate. Preference is given to who is fully expected to step up on his second to Turtur at Kempton Park.

WOOD PULP,

CRICKET

TOURISTS SCORE WELL

Remarkable Bowling Feats : Warwick Surprised

ALTHOUGH an error of judgment cost Mushtaq Ali his wicket when 15 runs had been obtained at Northampton, All-India made such excellent use of a good pitch that by the tea interval only two more wickets had fallen, and the score had reached 199. D. D. Hindlekar and V. M. Merchant had to exercise a good deal of care in the second partnership, during the early part of which rain seemed likely, and the light was rather indifferent. Merchant did some good cutting, while Hindlekar defended, and 57 had been put on in just under an hour and a half when Hindlekar pulled the ball on to his wicket at 72.

Raising the total to 80 by lunch, Merchant and C. K. Nayudu scored freely afterwards, both showing perfect timing with powerful drives and clean cutting. Merchant's splendid display ended with a fine catch at slip at 148. Batting two hours and fifty minutes he hit ten 4's, mostly drives, while his stand with Nayudu realised 76. Then Nayudu and L. Amarnath hit freely, adding 79 in seventy minutes before Nayudu was caught at the wicket after batting two hours and three-five minutes.

Amernath got to 50 after two hours and fifty minutes. Amar Singh, driving with tremendous power, scored at a great pace. Hitting three 6's and six 4's, he obtained 53 out of 73 in forty-five minutes' stand for the fifth wicket before being caught by the wicket-keeper at 300. Amar Singh, one of the touring party of 1932, now plays for Colne in the Lancashire League, and this was his first match in the present tour.

There were several remarkable bowling performances in the other matches. After reaching a total of 243 runs, Cambridge University got seven of the strong Warwickshire batting side out for a mere 25 runs, Jahangir Khan, the Indian fast-medium bowler, taking five of the wickets. Freeman had one of his great days at Gravesend, where he took seven Derby wickets for 29 runs, but when Kent went in, Copson, the young fast bowler, got rid of half the side for 57, two innings being completed in the day. Other notable feats were Verity's eight for 56 for Yorkshire against Oxford University, and Gover's six for 61 for Surrey against Hampshire.

Rogers v. Oestberg.

The draw has given either country the chance to strike a decisive blow on the first day, and, on the whole, favours Ireland. Our success depends on the ability of Rogers and McVeagh to win three of the four singles matches, and, as the first and second strings on both teams will be in opposition to-day, we have a splendid chance of gaining a decisive lead.

Rogers arrived in Dublin yesterday morning, and was out practising in the afternoon, displaying satisfactory form. He is very fit at the moment, and confident of doing well in his matches. The Swedish players were also at work in the afternoon, Oestberg having a single against Karlberg, the reserve, while Schroder had a knock against R. J. Sandys. None of the visitors showed especially convincing form on rather soft courts, and our chances of success seem to be bright.

OSLO, Wednesday.

Norway and Belgium each won one singles match in their second-round Davis Cup tie, which was begun here to-day. A. SENIOR SCHOOLS' CUP

Catholic University School, the holders, gave another excellent display in the Leinster Senior Schools Cup yesterday, defeating Terenure College at Terenure by six matches to nil. The winners were the cleverer in all matches, but T. Matthews and J. Joyce, the home doubles pair, put up a plucky fight against Lanigan and D'Arcy before being beaten 6-3 in the final set. GAELIC GAMES

DUBLIN FOOTBALL CHAMPIONSHIP

THE LEAGUE SYSTEM IN NORTH KERRY

BY PAT'O.

Dublin's Senior Football Championship has narrowed quickly, and the way is now clear for the final. St. Lawrence (Howth) will meet Clan-na-nGaedhal on May 31st. The progress of both teams followed on different lines. Howth selected their team from local sources, with a sprinkling of Guardsmen like T. Kelly, Conniffe and P. Perry, and were fortunate to recruit such a stalwart back as Michael Connaire, of Galway. Clan-na-nGaedhal came from the old Erin's Hope, from St. Patrick's College. They were lucky to secure the enrolment of P. Whitty, of Kerry, who continues to play high class football. They were also rather lucky to scrape home from St. Joseph's last Sunday. Score for score throughout, St. Joseph's looked winners before a hopping ball of Keaney's lobbed over Maher's head to the top of the net.

This year's football championship in Dublin promised to produce better football than we have seen of late. St. Lawrences had been playing better through the League than in either the second or third round of the championship. They will have Perry back at the left top corner for the final, and he plays particularly well when Dixon and Kelly are in close company.

Whitty, Feeney, Driscoll and Sheehan are the most useful men of the Clan team. There is material here for a good final, and St. Lawrence's may win.

Dublin's hurling end is equally keen. The Army (holders) meet University College next Sunday. These teams invariably play skilful hurling, and I think U.C.D. will run the Army very close round the last quarter, but so speedy are the Army on either wing and attack that I believe they will reach the final with either Faughs or Eoghan Rhua.

Mr. O'Toole has kept his championship series close to schedule. Attendances at Killester Park have been very good and new figures are almost certain for the finals.

Kildare and Laoighis had a very earnest game at Kildare, and there was never more than a goal between the sides. Kerry are shaping well, and news of the Garda v. Kerry match foreshadows another Munster championship for the Kingdom.

I met Kerry's old leader—Mr. John J. Sheehy—during the week, and he assures me that there are more active teams in Kerry now than since 1906. Twelve strong teams are contesting in the North Kerry championship on the league system. There are four strong sides in Tralee; Killarney and South Kerry are well organised, and parish matches continue to be well supported. Quite possibly we shall see Kerry in Croke Park next September.

Dublin schoolboys proved the advantages of regular training at Belfast on Sunday, when they brought both hurling and football cups to Leinster. Ulster has monopolised these games of recent years, but Dublin's preparation was more thorough, and they won the hurling with a lot in hands.

The biggest surprise of last Sunday's games was the rout of Limerick Juniors in both codes by Waterford. The football and hurling matches were supposed to be safe for Limerick, but Waterford fielded well-trained and skillful sides, and struck me as holding a particularly strong chance in Junior hurling.

ARMY CHAMPIONSHIP

The 3rd Battalion (Curragh) defeated the 1st Battalion (Galway) at Galway yesterday in the Football Championship by 8 goals 7 points to 4 goal 3 points.

GOLF

A GOOD CHANCE LOST

Irish Ladies Beat Champions, but fail against Wales

BY A SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.

AFTER registering a great victory over Scotland the champions, at Southport and Ainsdale yesterday, in the women's internationals, Ireland surprisingly went under to Wales in the afternoon, and so lost a chance of scoring a victory in the series for the first time since the nineties of the last century.

Miss Daisy Ferguson's morning win over the Scottish champion, Miss Robertson-Durham, was the outcome of some delightful play. Hitting the ball a good length and steering it straight on the fairways, she held a three-holes lead after the first half of the round. Miss Robertson-Durham was not playing her irons well, and the Irishwoman seized upon every chance to keep her lead. On the homeward half the Irish player maintained her steadiness, particularly in her putting, and won comfortably on the fifteenth green.

Mrs. Walker's surprising victory over Mrs. Holm was obtained mainly by good putting, and although Mrs. Holm made many mistakes the Irish player was always well ahead with her shots up to the hole.

MISS TIERNAN DRIVES BADLY

Ireland's success in their first match against Scotland was the most surprising feature of the day's play. All the members of the team played sound golf, and even Miss Tiernan, who lost to Miss Anderson at the 17th, had a glorious chance of adding to her side's triumph. Miss Anderson was off her driving at the start, but Miss Tiernan, who has been experimenting with a flat swing, also drove badly, and was unable to take advantage of the Scottish girl's mistakes. The game went in favour of Miss Anderson for the first eight holes, and the Scottish girl gained a three-holes lead. Miss Tiernan then fought back and reduced her arrears to one at the twelfth, where she hit two fine wooden club shots to the green. Miss Anderson putted extremely well, but, even so, the Irish girl held on grimly. Miss Anderson needed only one putt on the 15th and 17th, and won 2 and 1.

Two of the leading Irish players figured in extraordinary matches in the game against Wales. Miss Ferguson was defeated at the nineteenth by Miss Rieben, the Welsh champion, and Miss Tiernan went down to Miss Pyman after an extra hole, and both equalled birdie 2's. Miss Ferguson played extremely well, but after gaining an early lead of three, she lost two holes, the fifth, where she played a great iron shot from a bunker, holes against Miss Pyman, but she lost four of the next eight to be all-square, with two to play, Miss Pyman having played only one shot from a bunker up to that point. Miss Pyman won the seventeenth, but two great wooden club shots by the Irish girl gave her the eighteenth in a virtual 3. Miss Tiernan's caddie suggested a spoon at the nineteenth against her own judgment, and she went over the green, failed to recover, and did not ask Miss Pyman to putt from five feet for a 2.

England are in the happy position of being virtually certain of regaining the title. Champions two years ago, England requires to win only one of their nine games with Ireland to-day to secure the honour again.

According to the rules of the tournament, a tie is decided by the number of individual games won, and England's position is so strong that they may be regarded as champions.

England's victories were so overwhelming that there could be no criticism of any member of the side. Miss Wanda Morgan, the champion, and Mrs. Marjorie Garon, the English title-holder, were outstanding personalities. Each, in her own way, made the long course seem easy, and the power of Miss Morgan's game with all her clubs left no doubt that she is in great form for the defence of her title in the championship, which begins to-morrow.

WATER POLO

LEINSTER LEAGUE RESUMED

ADDITIONAL SECTION THIS SEASON

The Council of the Leinster Branch of the I.A.S.A. has arranged for the resumption of League water polo in 1936 the experiment of "friendly" fixtures in substitution, tried in 1935, having proved unsuitable.

Up to 1934 two leagues were in operation, Senior and Junior. The latter was composed mainly of the reserve teams of the senior clubs. The Council has decided this year to exclude reserve teams of senior clubs from the Junior League, and to accommodate them in an Intermediate League, a new competition in which the Civic Guards, Junior League champions in 1934, will also compete.

The newly-constituted Junior League will contain six clubs, which is a very satisfactory start under the new conditions. Altogether, there will be seventeen teams engaged in competitive water polo in Leinster this season, a marked advance on any previous season.

The draws for the Irish, Leinster Senior and Leinster Junior Cups have been made, and will be announced when the dates have been fixed.

The opening fixtures for each league are :—

SENIOR AND INTERMEDIATE.

THE LAST FOUR IN THE JUNIOR CUP

The University College players again were in their best form when the second round of the Leinster section of the Irish Junior Cup was played at Dun Laoghaire last evening. T. D. Purcell, their No. 1, produced excellent figures, having seven threes on his round, and when his match against T. Woods, of Portmarnock, finished at the sixteenth he was one under fours, despite having two sixes—at the second and fourteenth. J. F. Eustace, however, had the best figures of the evening, having an approximate 66, when he won from J. F. Owens by 2 and 1. University College won by 3 matches to 2, and this evening will meet Milltown, who scored an overwhelming victory (5 to nil) over Woodbrook.

Sutton just got home against Killiney by 3-2 after winning the third and fifth matches at the twentieth; and Grange, the other winners, had to rely upon a long putt on the eighteenth green by P. J. Fennell to win 3-2 against Bray.

Financial News & Notes

DUBLIN HARDER

BANK STOCK SUPPORTED

RAILS BETTER

Business on the Dublin Stock Exchange yesterday was again of modest dimensions, but despite the prevailing quiet conditions a harder tendency developed in places.

The Second National Loan eased to 115¼, but the Fourth added a fraction and Land Bonds gained 5s. War Loan eased the turn. Dublin 3½ p.c. 1955-80 tended higher, but the 5 p.c. 1950-70 fell 10s.

In Banks, good support put Bank of Ireland Stock two points higher, but Provincial Old lost 1s.

Guinness held 158s. 9d. and Power Deb. were again 19s. 6d.

B. and I. Steam Pref. recovered to 23s. 3d. and Grand Canal Pref. made fresh headway to 99s.

Movements in Rails favoured holders. Great Southern Ord. and Deb. tended higher, and Great Northern Pref. finished 15s. higher.

Johnston Mooney Ord. gained 1s. and the Pref. moved up to 24s. 6d.

Abbey Clothing Pref. and Carroll Ord. slipped away, but Irish Times 1st Pref. advanced 1s.

Imperial Chemicals inclined to give way and Vickers Ord. drooped to 23s. 7¼d. Imperial Tobaccos hardened to 159s. and Leyer Prefs. inclined higher.

There was strong demand for Mexican Eagles, which resulted in a sharp rise of 3s. 3d., and Shell Transport Ord. advanced to 98s.

LONDON IRREGULAR

ACTIVE DEALINGS IN TWIN EAGLES

The outstanding point of interest on the London Stock markets yesterday was pronounced speculative activity in Mexican and Canadian Eagle Oil shares. Buying in these issues, based on reports of favourable developments on the property and talk of a coming statement clarifying the present position, started before the official opening hour, and notwithstanding the fact that considerable profit-taking took place later in the day, quotations closed substantially higher. Business in Kaffirs was also brisk, and West Wits, which again attracted chief attention, reached a fresh record high level before profit-taking caused a reactionary tendency. Interest in other departments remained small, and the investment groups became somewhat dull, while the majority of price changes in industrials were adverse.

BRITISH FUNDS

Gilt-edged stocks were practically neglected, and the small turnover resulted mainly from scattered sales. The undertone of the market kept cheerful, however, and the few declines which occurred were unimportant.

RAILS

Operators in British railways, although expressing satisfaction with last week's traffic figures, were more disposed to reduce than increase commitments, and quotations, therefore, lost ground. Great Western Ordinary, L.M.S. Ordinary, and Southerns were generally ¼ down. Business in Foreign Rails was still negligible, and the only price change of note was a decline in Cordoba Central 2nd Debs. Colonials were quiet and easier in places, but American Rails showed firmness, and one or two issues finished a point to the good.

INDUSTRIALS

Subdued conditions again existed in the Industrial market, and the sustained absence of support was responsible for dulness in several sections. Lower prices ruled for most Motors, Iron and Steels, and Electrical Equipments, while Dunlops, Borax Deferred, and many other leading miscellaneous descriptions also receded. On the other hand, Woolworths continued to receive support in the belief that a capital bonus will be distributed. Alpha Cement advanced following the news that terms for the acquisition of another company have been settled, and British Portland Cement, Marks and Spencers, and Valors were other firm features.

MINES

Predominant in Mines was renewed activity in Kaffirs. West Wits went ahead at first in response to buying in anticipation of the Libanon flotation, and further borehole news, but heavy selling towards the close eliminated most of the initial advance. Goldfields, Anglo-American, and certain other finance shares were favoured in view of the appreciation which has recently occurred in their holdings. West African and other gold shares were less active, without significant change, but Diamond shares commanded more attention and tended to improve.

BRITISH OVERSEAS TRADE

DROP IN IMPORTS AND EXPORTS FOR APRIL

Both imports and exports during April were down compared with the figures for March, and there was a slight rise in the value of re-exports, according to the preliminary figures for the month published last night in the "Board of Trade Journal." On the other hand, for the first four months of the year the three sets of figures show increases on the corresponding period of last year.

The excess of imports over exports during the January-April period was £105,428,000, compared with £81,381,000 in 1935. Imports for April at £65,666,000 decreased by £1,386,000 on the March figure of £68,052,000, but was a considerable increase compared with the total for April last year of £59,872,000. Exports amounted to £33,427,000 against the March total of £36,510,000, a drop of £3,083,000. Compared with April last year, however, an increase was recorded of £417,000. Re-exports at £5,922,000 increased by £22,000 on the previous month and by £1,719,000 on last year's April figure.

On a four months' basis imports, totalling £265,691,000, were up by £28,825,000 on the corresponding period last year of £237,866,000. Exports at £139,483,000 increased by £985,000, and re-exports, amounting to £21,780,000, rose by £3,691,000

The main figures were :—

	April, 1936.	March, 1936.	April, 1935.

THE INDUSTRIAL MARKET

CONDITIONS REMAIN SUBDUED

There was little fresh business passing in the Industrial market yesterday. There was little doing on this side in the trans-Atlantic counters, but prices improved in the late dealings under the lead of nickels, which rose to 46½. "Emmies" held around the overnight level, but E. K. Cole receded. Cable and Wireless Stocks ruled quietly steady, with a little support noticeable for the "A" Ord. The report and accounts are expected any day now.

Despite encouraging trade reports, Iron and Steel descriptions generally had a dull appearance, absence of demand, coupled with moderate realisations, resulting in a long list of declines. Among the few firm spots may be mentioned Whiteheads, which recovered ½, and Allied Ironfounders, which improved 6d.

Aviation and kindred descriptions again had an easier tendency, business being on a small scale.

MOTOR SHARES DULL.

With only a few exceptions, Motor shares were dull. Leylands hardened to 94s. 9d., but A.E.C. further fell 9d., and losses of 6d. were marked in Fords, Standards and Thos. Tilling.

Electrical Equipments again had an easier tendency. Ever Ready, however, were steady on the report, closing at 25s. 6d.

Among Breweries, trading generally remained on a small scale.

In the Alcohol section Distillers continued a firm market, and finished 6d. higher at 102s. 6d. Conversely South African Wines gave way further.

The Tobacco leaders were subject to few scattered sales.

In the Stores group Woolworths went further ahead to the new high level of 130s., on bonus hopes. Marks and Spencers were also better.

Unilevers reacted somewhat among Provision and Catering shares, closing at 32s. 9d., and the N.V. at 36s. Tate and Lyle were also easier.

Salts (Saltaire) issues were fairly active among Textiles on the publication of the full report. The Ordinary improved. Calico Printers gained the turn. Among Rayons, Courtaulds were unchanged on the day at 48s. 6d., after touching 48s. 10½d. Snia Viscosa were again supported at 2¾, but British Enkas reacted. American and Canadian Celanese both held steady.

SHIPPING SHARES.

Among Shipping shares a renewed demand was reported for E.D. Realisations, and the price finished 1s. to the good at 44s.

Prices moved somewhat irregularly in the Miscellaneous section, but few changes of importance were recorded.

BIG TURNOVER IN EAGLE OILS

Chief interest in the Oil Share market centred on Mexican and Canadian Eagles. Large lines of shares were bought at steadily advancing prices, and it was a matter of comment that Mexicans were lifted to over the 25s. mark with considerable ease. It is understood that certain operators who had bought much lower down have realised their holdings, which were substantial, the shares being absorbed quite easily. It was noticeable that, while the buying of Mexican Eagles was particularly strong, Canadian Eagles received a bigger share of the business than of late. The sharp rise which was witnessed in Mexican Eagles during the early hours was followed by profit-taking sales, but at the finish a rise of over a shilling was shown, while Canadians closed 6d. up. The final dividend and preliminary figures of the Burmah Oil Company are due to be announced to-day. Higher distribution is confidently anticipated. Burmahs met with a fair amount of attention, and improved 7s to 5½.

RUBBERS FLAT

With public and professional support virtually absent dull and uninteresting conditions characterised the Rubber Share market yesterday. The modest turn over again resulted largely from sales by tired holders, and in consequence quotations where changed were usually lower. Business in the Commodity section was slow, and Spot Rubber sold down to 7¼d. per lb.

THE AMERICAN MARKETS

THREE-DOLLAR GAINS IN "WET" GROUP

REUTER'S TELEGRAMS.

NEW YORK, Wednesday.

That the total turnover was only 590,000 shares constituted a clear indication of the severe holding-off attitude adopted by Stock Exchange operators again to-day. Conversely, the undertone of the market was definitely good, and the list ended with gains touching 3 dollars, under the bright leadership of "Wet" issues.

The market closed firm, with gains of anything to 3 dollars in the "Wet" group, and advances extending to 2 dollars in Liggett Tobacco, U.S. Smelting, Westinghouse Electric, and Ingersoll-Rand. The Mining, Farm Implement, Tobacco, Steel, Copper, Industrial and Chemical divisions generally finished fractions to 1 dollar higher.

The acute weakness of the franc which became apparent in the late dealings on Tuesday was not renewed in the London foreign exchange market yesterday. The market was distinctly nervous for the first few hours, and it was suspected that the London authorities were intervening in the market in support of the franc, though not through the customary channels. Selling pressure was not, however, on the scale of the previous day, and by the late afternoon had dwindled to such an extent that a few bear covering operations were sufficient to cause a sharp recovery in the franc in both spot and forward markets. The recovery was shared by the rest of the European gold currencies, as well as by the American dollar.

"MURDER IN THE CATHEDRAL"

PRODUCTION IN DUBLIN

"Murder in the Cathedral," Mr. T. S. Eliot's verse-play on St. Thomas à Becket, will be presented at the Gate Theatre from May 25th to May 31st. The company is that which is engaged in its production now at the Mercury Theatre, London, where the play has been running for the last seven months. The London run ends on Saturday, and the play will then be taken on tour to Oxford, Cambridge, and Dublin. Mr. Martin Browne, who will be responsible for the production, will be remembered in Dublin for his activities last year in connection with the Summer School of Acting, when he gave a fine production of "The Trojan Women." Last winter he gave a series of talks on play production on the B.B.C. National programme. Mr. Robert Speaight, who will play Becket, is well known as an actor, and is a fine speaker of verse.

CATTLE EXPORTS INCREASING

WARBLE FLY ORDER IN DUBLIN MARKET

It was reported at the meeting of the Irish Livestock Exporters' and Traders' Association held in Dublin last night that the number of cattle exported from the Free State for the past twelve months totalled 200,050. This represented an increase of 36,000 over the previous year.

A letter was read from the Department of Agriculture stating, in reply to one from the Association in reference to the inspection of cattle under the Warble (Treatment of Cattle) Order, that the duty of enforcing the order was imposed on the local authority under the Diseases of Animals Acts, and that from inquiries made the Minister was satisfied that the order was being administered by the Dublin Corporation with full consideration to the interests concerned.

It was added that the reports from the inspectors showed that the inspection was necessary, and served a useful purpose in drawing attention to the requirements of the order, as it had been found that a number of animals exposed for sale at the market had not been treated in compliance with it.

It was decided to write to the Dublin Corporation pointing out that no good purpose could be served by inspection of cattle at the market as the cattle shown there were, in most cases, purchased within the previous two or three days and had been brought from farms already inspected and intended entirely for export. It was added that the onus of seeing that the order was carried out should not be placed on the dealers.

A letter was received from the Minister of Posts and Telegraphs stating that, owing to the heavy deficit on the telegraph service, he was precluded from the possibility of introducing a reduced rate.

CHILD FOUND HANGED

ACCIDENT WHILE PLAYING

Joseph Tyndall, aged 4½ years, son of John Tyndall, labourer, of Killadrennan, Newtownmountkennedy, Co. Wicklow, met his death under curious circumstances when playing in his father's cottage on Monday evening.

Usually the child tied a strong piece of twine round a goat's neck and played horses with other children, and it is presumed that yesterday he had a rope around his own shoulders, and stood on a pot to attach the rope to the latch of the door. The pot apparently slipped, suspending the boy from the latch and strangling him. He was later found by his mother lying partially suspended and apparently dead. She cut him down and applied artificial respiration, but the boy was dead.

MIXTURES OF GRASS SEEDS

TEMPORARY pasture is a crop which occupies the ground for three, four or more years. This being so, it should be the aim and object of every farmer, when laying land down to pasture, to do everything possible to ensure that this crop shall be a good one; besides, the quality of the pasture at the time the field is again ploughed for a rotation of crops will influence for good or bad the yields of these crops. This in itself should be sufficient justification for the little extra expense involved in the purchase of suitable mixtures of seeds. It is well known, for example, that pastures containing wild white clover not only provides more and better grazing for stock than those which do not, but such fields, when ploughed up again, produce superior yields of crops and do not normally require so much nitrogenous manure as those in which wild white clover was absent or poorly represented. It is seen, therefore, that a suitable seeds mixture may indirectly save expense in the purchase of manures later.

Mistakes to Avoid

Probably the most frequent mistake made in the composition of seeds mixtures is the omission of seeds of species of permanent grasses and clovers. The ryegrasses are not permanent—Italian ryegrass is very short-lived—and, while these produce good crops of hay, they cannot be depended on to form good pastures. Of the permanent species of grasses, cocksfoot, timothy, rough-stalked meadow grass and meadow fescue are the most useful; while of the clovers, wild white clover is truly permanent and red and alsike clovers short-lived. The permanent species of grasses
